FLOOD LOSS ENORMOUS IN JAPAN; MANY MINES RUINED

Towns Destroyed By Raging Waters; Crops Swept Away

SCORES DROWNED

Damage In One District More Than Y 20,000,000

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, June 22.—The floods in Kyushu continue unabated and landslides throughout the country are now adding to the terror of destruction. In the town of Hita 1,200 of the total 1,800 houses have been swept away and many people drowned. The scene is one of utter confusion. Three thousand people are housed in temples and primary schools and all are without food. Some are weeping over their dead while others are out in boats searching for bodies.

Lumber to the value of a million yen has been carried away and some merchants are now endeavoring to corner all the remaining lumber. The damage in this district alone is estimated at over twenty million yen. All the factories and mines in Kyushu have been flooded and destroyed, the crops are ruined and bridges and railways have been washed away.

Golden State Will Arrive Tonight And The Nile Early Tomorrow

American mail arriving on two steamers this week will not be distributed and delivered until tomorrow as the first consignment will not be received at the American Post Office until to-night.

The Golden State of the Pacific Mail shipping line which is making its second voyage to the Far East, will be the first of the two steamers arriving from America to reach port. It is expected that the Golden State will dock at the Lower Wharf tonight.

The second boat arriving is the Nile of the China Mail, which has been delayed by bad weather. It is expected that the Nile will arrive early tomorrow morning and will dock at the China Merchants Central wharf. The Nile has 23 cabin and 26 second-class passengers for Shanghai and is bringing 192 bags of mail and 518 tons of cargo. Capt. J. T. Kinley, formerly first officer of the Nile, is in command this voyage. The Nile leaves for Hongkong and Singapore Saturday.

Mail will be dispatched from the American Post Office for Honolulu on the steamer Tenny Mart of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha which sails for San Francisco by way of Japanese ports and Honolulu tomorrow. The Tenny Maru is due to arrive off Woosung at midnight tonight and the incoming tender from the vessel is expected to arrive at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The out-bound tender for the Tenny Maru will be dispatched from the Customs Jetty tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The bulk of the mail being received at the American Post Office is to be dispatched on the Empress of Russia of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services which will sail Saturday for Vancouver, B.C. by way of Japan ports.

The Empress of Russia is due off Woosung at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the tender from the ship is expected to arrive about 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The out-bound tender with passengers and mails will be dispatched for the boat at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

May Succeed Gompers As U. S. Labor Chief

It is said in well informed labor circles that Samuel Gompers, for the first time since 1885, may be defeated for the presidency of the American Federation of Labor at the convention in Denver now in session. It is said that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, may succeed the veteran leader. Lewis, while not a candidate for the office, is said to be "willing" to accept.

SHENSI TUCHUN DECLARES WAR ON SUCCESSOR

Drive Against Anfu Chief Set For Today; Wires In Zone Are Cut

The clash between the new and old Tsuchuns of Shensi, Yen Hsiang-wen and Chen Shu-fang, appears to be inevitable. Yen is due to start his drive from Tungkuwan with the crack troops of General Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian leader, today, while Chen Shu-fang's latest message was couched in the strongest and most defiant terms.

Yen will have the undivided support of Tsoo Kun, the Chihli super-tuchun, while Chen will rely on Tuchun Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang for assistance. Chen's last message, under date of June 18, stated that his previous request for funds to pay the overdue salaries of the officers and men and to retain their services was made in the best interests of all concerned. Yet he had received no reply. If Yen pressed him hard before the financial problem was solved, he would be compelled to ignore further orders from Peking.

Tsoo Kun's report indicates that Chen has already interrupted the telegraph lines west of Tungkuwan and is preparing to take up a position in central Shensi for military operations.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, June 21.—The Ministry of War is at present considering General Chen Shu-fang's request for funds to pay military expense incurred during his term of office as Tuchun of Shensi. The sum named is very large, and in view of the present financial situation it would be very difficult for the Government to meet this demand, which is one of General Chen's conditions for his retirement from Shensi.

Peking, June 22.—The Kansu authorities are co-operating with the Government regarding affairs in Shensi and General Chen Shu-fang will therefore find himself between two fires if he offers resistance to the new Tuchun.

MINE CHIEF SEES DEFEAT, PUTS BLAME ON UNIONISTS

Hodges Takes Gloomy View Of Situation Confronting Labor

WILL FIGHT ON

"Iron In Soul Of Pit Workers," He Tells Conference

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—A gloomy view of the labor situation was taken by Mr. Frank Hodges (Secretary to the Miners' Federation) in a speech at the annual conference of the Labor party at Brighton today, when he said that the miners' leaders must assume a great deal of responsibility rather than allow a huge mass of the population to go on till the breaking point came, and chaos and disaster replaced discipline, good-will and solidarity. "Maybe we shall have to bow to the inevitable forces that surround us."

He described the trade-union movement as a mere grouping of close corporations, each with only the interest of its particular group at heart. The failure of the Triple Alliance to act during the coal strike was due to the internal structure of the trade-union organization.

Referring to the miners' struggle, Mr. Hodges said that the miners' capacity to suffer for the right had been a wonderful demonstration, but the struggle could not be continued indefinitely. The time must soon come for an end to the suffering. "We do not propose to make any dramatic declaration," he said. "All drama has been knocked out of us. We won't blame you if we are beaten, but the iron has entered into the miner's soul." It was solely the Government that was responsible, and when everything was over, the miners would not rest until they had brought this Government down and thus achieved politically what they had failed to achieve by industrial means.

New Suit Reopens Famous Fair Will Contest

Another contest over the distribution of the James G. Fair millions was launched in the Superior Court in San Francisco recently and paved a way for reopening of the famous will contest. Mrs. Mary J. Lundy, of Alameda, Cal., was granted special letters of administration on the estate of Miss Eliza Ann Fair, a previously unheard-of niece of James G. Fair, by Presiding Judge E. P. Shortall, according to a report from San Francisco. Mrs. Lundy, according to the petition, is a sister of Eliza Ann Fair, who died in Cherokee County, Iowa, in July, 1918. They are both daughters of the late Thomas Fair, who died previous to the death of his multi-millionaire brother, James G. Fair. The hearing on the petition for general letters of administration of the estate of Eliza Ann Fair, which, according to the petition, consists of her share in the estate of James G. Fair, will come up before Judge Shortall. The photograph shows Mrs. Mary J. Lundy.

Sails Set And Mess Tables Laid—Message Mystifying

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 21.—Five Government Departments are wrestling with a mystery of the sea, which began with the discovery of a five-masted vessel ashore at Norfolk, Virginia, with sails set and mess-tables laid, but nobody on board, and the subsequent discovery of a bottle containing a message, purporting to have been written by the captain, stating that the crew had been taken prisoner. Three small steamers have since disappeared. The authorities, being of opinion that these happenings are related, have instructed their consuls throughout the world to search for the missing crew.

SMUTS SEES FAR EAST AS SCENE OF BIG PROBLEMS

South African Premier Says Britain Must Be Peace Maker

ALL GIVE VIEWS

Hughes And Massey For Pact Renewal, With Restrictions

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—Following the traditional order of precedence, Mr. Arthur Meighen (Prime Minister of Canada) was the first Dominion speaker when the proceedings of the Imperial Conference were resumed today. He urged as an essential condition for the success of these conferences that there should be frequent and regular meetings, as demanded by the growing intimacy of Imperial relations. He remarked that the only Dominion was possibly not disposed to give equal attention to the paramount necessity for recognizing that no step should be taken which overlooked the importance of mitigating racial divisions.

General J. C. Smuts argued that the predominant object of British policy should be securing peace for the world. Two great advances in that direction had been the settlement of the reparations question and the disarmament of Germany. The latter, he contended, ought to become the basis of a new departure for world policy. He spoke strongly in favor of Anglo-American co-operation, emphasizing, however, that he did not mean that there should be an alliance.

In laying stress on the need for peace, the South African Premier stressed very strongly that it would be a cardinal feature of his policy to make a race for armaments impossible. It would be a most fatal mistake for there to be a race against America, whom the Dominions regarded as the oldest of them. The Empire, however, stood in no need of exclusive alliances. In fact Europe had to a large extent lost its pre-war power and position, and there was strong reason against the Empire's entering into European entanglements. General Smuts predicted that the Far East and the Pacific were destined to be the center of the world's problems for the next fifty years. As regards the Far East, he declared that the British Empire's great position singled her out as a peace-maker and mediator between East and West. He believed that the present Conference would become one of the great landmarks of history if it could lead the Powers concerned in the Far East into friendly conference.

Mr. Sastri (India) pleaded that Indians now fully domiciled in the Dominions should receive full rights of citizenship, and foreshadowed a resolution as regards the status of Indians in the Dominions which, he declared, would be regarded in India as the test whereby the whole position must be judged.

Mr. W. M. Hughes (Australia) maintained that improved cable communications were absolutely essential if the Dominions were going to have an effective voice in the Empire's foreign policy. He was strongly in favor of the

Earl Of Minto Follows Old Custom; Carries Bride Into New Home

THE Earl of Minto, who was married in Montreal, Canada, recently to Miss Marion Cook, of Montreal, took his wife to his ancestral home in England and followed the old custom which decrees that a bridegroom must carry his bride over the threshold of her new home. The custom is said to be a relic of the runaway marriages of olden times. The photo shows Lord Minto carrying the new Lady Minto into the house.

Chit Coolie Pinch Hits For Cupid In The Far East

BY ELSIE MCCORMICK

The man who first represented Cupid as an obese infant with miniature feather-dusters sprouting on his shoulder-blades was as far off the track as the average Shanghai laundry boy. We don't know just how it was in ancient Greece, but in this city Cupid is usually clad in roomy trousers of the Harding blue tint with a blouse to match, and instead of a quiver of arrows he carries a book with a pencil attached.

It happens that the most romantic book in Shanghai is the chit book. If you are inclined to doubt it, consider the number of live-affairs it has promoted and the bushels of billet doux it has conveyed without revealing anything more than a tangle of initials. When you see the blue-tinted messenger winging his way through the business districts at a net tonnage of a half mile an hour, you are inclined to think of invoices and bills of lading, exchange rates and merchandise orders. But more than half the time, Alf who works in an exporting house is asking Mamie who is motor-man to a typewriter five blocks away just how she is fixed for the evening and what the chances are for stepping out. Undoubtedly the chit book is the mainstay of Shanghai's date crop which, as any business man will tell you, is one of the city's principal products.

The use of the chit book in business, society, and romance has as many advantages over calling up on the telephone as the amah system has over darning one's own stockings. For instance, it gives the recipient of an unacceptable invitation plenty of time to think up a water-tight excuse.

THE HANDY PEN

A person caught by surprise on the telephone usually stammers something about it's being the cat's evening out or the date of the baby amah's fantasia party, ending after a series of diluted and contradictory excuses by accepting the invitation. As the age of the troubador is past, most people compose stories more readily by penmanship than they do orally. Therefore excuses in chit form are usually at least as plausible as the plot of the average movie scenario.

Existence Of Empire Depends On Sea Power, He Declares

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 22.—The Associated Press is informed that Great Britain intends to renew the Anglo-Japanese Alliance with an amendment making it plain that she will not take up arms against America in the event of hostilities between Japan and America.

A correction has been received, completing the passage in Mr. Lloyd George's speech to the Imperial Conference which was mutilated in transmission. The passage in question now reads as follows:

"We are ready to discuss with American statesmen any proposal for the limitation of armaments on their part, and undertake that such overtures will find no lack of willingness to meet them. In the meantime we cannot forget that the life of the United Kingdom and also that of Australia and New Zealand—indeed the whole Empire—is built on sea-power, which is necessarily the basis of the Empire's existence. We must, therefore, look to the measures our security requires. We aim at nothing more, and cannot possibly be content with less."

In the following sentence, from the passage in which Mr. Lloyd George was dealing with treaty obligations, the word "new" was omitted in transmission: "There might be some relaxations of the treaties here and there, following upon the discovery of new conditions, and with the consent of all parties, but the treaties must stand where such consent was not forthcoming."

London, June 21.—The King and Queen departed from Euston Station today for Holyhead on their way to Ireland. The royal procession drove in open carriages from Buckingham Palace and received ovations from crowds along the route.

London, June 21.—In the House of Commons today, when Earl Winterbottom moved the adjournment of the House in order to call attention to "The Government's failure to secure the safety of British officers in Ireland," the Secretary for War (Sir Laming Worthington-Evans) declared that extra battalions had been despatched and that all available troops would be rushed to their support.

The Lord Chamberlain (Lord Birkenhead) speaking in the House of Lords today in opposition to a motion by Lord Donoughmore, expressed the hope that wiser counsels would prevail in Ireland at the eleventh hour, but declared that, if the demand for a republic were persisted in, Great Britain could carry on the struggle with the same tenacity as she displayed in the Great War.

New York, June 22.—The New York Tribune quotes a statement by a Sinn Féin official to the effect that two submarines, flying the flag of the "Irish Republic," are maintaining a passenger service between America and Ireland. It is alleged that de Valera and other prominent Sinn Féiners utilised this service.

American Commercial Body Sees Better Trade Outlook

general, and has always adhered to American principles in its deliberations and recommendations. The Committee has worked in entire harmony with the chambers of commerce of other nations in this city and has co-operated in every attempt put forth for the improvement of business conditions in China.

"With the fall in exchange, the local Chinese Piece Goods Dealers endeavored to effect cancellation of contracts on undelivered goods. This Chamber did not favor the wholesale revocation of these contracts and recommended adherence to the sanctity of the written contract. In some cases cancellation was accepted with compensation to the manufacturer, while in other cases the goods arrived and had to be placed in storage. Stocks on hand, although above normal in value, are below normal in quantity and with the market improving they can be liquidated gradually but not without considerable loss. The Piece Goods Sub-committee has been engaged in the preparation of a new form of contract which is considered acceptable to the Chinese. Goods and will be submitted to local importers and to the manufacturers for final approval.

THE INCORPORATION BILL

"By far the most important activity of the Committee during the year has been the Federal Incorporation Bill. In August of last year the Committee entertained the Congressional party at that time visiting the Orient. The Federal Incorporation Bill was presented to the party in a most able manner by Mr. C. L. Seitz, and each member returned to the United States with a much broader vision of business conditions in China and the need for legislation which would give American business an opportunity equal to that of other nations. An official conference was held two days later with Congressman Dyer, chairman of the Special Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, and each member of our Committee was given the opportunity of presenting to Mr. Dyer his views relative to the necessity for the enactment of the Federal Incorporation Bill. The hearings were taken stenographically and were later forwarded to Mr. Dyer to be printed and submitted to his Committee in Congress.

"At the National Foreign Trade Convention in San Francisco last year, the delegation from this Chamber, of which Mr. A. R. Hager was chairman, did admirable work in arousing interest in the Bill and the Convention officially, in its 'Final Declaration,' endorsed the bill and urged its passage by Congress. The thanks of this Chamber are due to Mr. Hager and his delegation for their work in securing the support of practically every delegate at the Convention.

WORKS IN WASHINGTON

"During the first part of the year Mr. C. L. Seitz spent considerable time in Washington, appearing before committees of both Houses on several occasions and on one occasion before a joint committee of both Houses. He gave them much valuable information which they did not previously have, regarding business conditions in China. Much credit is due Mr. Seitz for the excellent work which he performed during his stay in Washington, as well as in other parts of the United States where he spoke to commercial organizations and to individuals urging the enactment of legislation for American business in China.

"Mr. J. B. Powell, the Honorary Secretary of this Chamber, is now in Washington giving his own time while the Chamber is devoting his expenses, working with committees on the bill. Mr. Powell reached Washington the early part of the year and has been devoting his time with the committees of both Houses, giving publicity to the bill through the press; by talks before commercial organizations at important centers and, in short, bending every effort to obtain the support of American business men in the United States. The thanks of this Chamber are likewise due to Mr. Powell.

"The Federal Incorporation Bill was originally introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Dyer on July 11, 1919, as H. R. 7204. No action was taken by the House on this bill until the early part of this year. The bill passed the House of Representatives at the last session of Congress but the shortness of time prevented it being placed on the calendar of the Senate before adjournment. The bill was again introduced in the House during the special session called by the President and passed the House on April 28, 1921, being designated as H. R. 4810.

HARDING ENDORSES BILL
"The bill is now before the Senate Committee. It is gratifying to note that President Harding has gone so far as to request the Senate to give this bill prior consideration. Secretary of State Hughes, in a letter to Congressman Dyer, wrote: 'I believe that the Department has for some time advocated the enactment of Federal legislation which would regularize the formation of corporations in China, and is in sympathy with the general provisions of your bill.' Secretary of Commerce Hoover, in a letter to Chairman Volstead of the House Judiciary Committee, stated: 'I wish to add strong emphasis to the desirability of early consideration of House Bill 16048 (now H. R. 4810) to authorize the incorporation of companies to promote trade in China, which was introduced by Mr. Dyer and passed the House at the last session but failed to reach the floor of the Senate. The matter is one of great importance to the preservation of the trade and investment of our nationals in China. The act is intended to establish a Federal incorporation law for local Chinese business in such a manner as to give our citizens an equality of opportunity with other nationals. Secretary Hoover has also personally appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee urging the enactment of this bill.'

"With such support as this we have every reason to expect the early passage of the Federal Incorporation Bill.

ATTACHE'S OFFICE OPENED

"Of great value to American business here has been the opening of an office in Shanghai of the American Commercial Attache. We have persisted in persuading the Department of Commerce to establish an office in Shanghai and since this has been accomplished progress is being made toward an intimate co-operation between the Chamber and the Commercial Attache in a collective effort to obtain and disseminate information of value to the development of American trade, and every member of the Chamber is urged to give further assistance to this end.

"It is planned to hold in Shanghai this fall a conference of all American Chambers of Commerce in China for considering business conditions in various parts of the country, thereby bringing interests closer together for the study of questions affecting American business here.

"The Committee appreciates the cordial co-operation of the members during the past year, and we feel certain that you will continue to apply in your business dealings with all nationals those high ideals of American business which mean so much in maintaining our place in the commerce of the world.

"This report will be printed in pamphlet form with an addendum containing a list of subjects considered during the year."

HAS HEAVY EXPENSE

The treasurer's report showed that the Chamber has been under unusually heavy expense in connection with the pushing of the Federal Incorporation Bill at Washington and it was stated that a special contribution to cover this highly necessary and effective item will be called for in the near future.

The chairman of the arbitration committee reported that, aside from a cause practically concluded at the time of the last annual meeting, but one case had come up for consideration during the past year. This was a case involving a dispute between an American importing firm and a Chinese merchant with reference to sale and delivery of a considerable quantity of indigo.

A number of hearings were held and experts were called in. The Chinese declined to carry out the findings of the arbitrators and was upheld in the Mixed Court, which upheld the committee's award. The report concluded with acknowledgments to Messrs. J. C. Shengle, N. A. Thompson and H. B. Lane for services rendered.

renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance if it distinctly excluded the possibility of war with America. He believed that its renewal was most likely to ensure world peace.

Mr. Hughes proceeded to advocate a conference of the Powers with the object of limiting armaments and stopping naval construction. He considered that the Dominions ought to contribute to naval defence on a per capita basis, instead of some paying more than others, and that it should be in terms of Dominions Navies. He questioned the necessity for the proposed Constitutional Conference next year.

Mr. W. F. Massey (New Zealand) said he regarded the improvement of transport and communications within the Empire as one of the most vital concerns. He dealt with the unworkable nature of the dual administration (British and French) in the New Hebrides, and suggested an exchange of territory with France. He expressed the hope that future Conferences would be held periodically in the Dominions, and also supported the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

London, June 22.—Reuter Agency learns that at today's meeting of the conference of Imperial Prime Ministers, Lord Curzon will submit an expose of the present position in regard to foreign affairs, after which the conference will probably adjourn until Friday so as to enable the delegates to consider Earl Curzon's statement.

It is anticipated that the material work of the conference will only begin next Monday.

Parleys Between Vladivostok And Semenov Futile

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, June 22.—The negotiations between Ataman Semenov and the Government have been renewed, but so far without result.

General Netchaleff, an adherent of Ataman Semenov, has started an advance on Habarovsk from Spassk, and is attempting to use the Kappel forces at Spassk for this purpose, but the Government has ordered him to desist.

A split has occurred in the Non-Socialist Conference, now sitting, on the question of relations with Ataman Semenov, who is supported by the delegates belonging to the Extreme Right.

A conference of peasants in the Ussuri district on the 17th inst. passed a resolution declaring that the only acceptable authority is that of an impartially elected National Assembly, and that Ataman Semenov's presence on Russian soil is wholly undesirable. The resolution further affirmed that the Non-Socialist Conference does not represent the will of the people, and therefore the peasants and Cossacks decline to take part in it.

The resolution further affirmed that the Non-Socialist Conference does not represent the will of the people, and therefore the peasants and Cossacks decline to take part in it.

General Netchaleff, an adherent of Ataman Semenov, has started an advance on Habarovsk from Spassk, and is attempting to use the Kappel forces at Spassk for this purpose, but the Government has ordered him to desist.

A split has occurred in the Non-Socialist Conference, now sitting, on the question of relations with Ataman Semenov, who is supported by the delegates belonging to the Extreme Right.

A conference of peasants in the Ussuri district on the 17th inst. passed a resolution declaring that the only acceptable authority is that of an impartially elected National Assembly, and that Ataman Semenov's presence on Russian soil is wholly undesirable. The resolution further affirmed that the Non-Socialist Conference does not represent the will of the people, and therefore the peasants and Cossacks decline to take part in it.

New Engineering Company Opens Its Office Building; Launches Steamer Hafthor

Last Of Eight Vessels Built For Norwegian
Owners Takes Maiden Plunge—Gathering
Inspects Handsome New Structure

Incidental to the launching yesterday of the new steamer Hafthor at the yards of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Company the gathering invited to the new vessel take its maiden plunge took part also in the formal opening of the recently completed office building of the shipbuilding company. The steamer launched yesterday is the last of eight vessels all built by the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Company for Norwegian owners. Mrs. C. A. Skinner christened the ship.

ALL SISTER SHIPS
The s.s. Hafthor and her sister vessels are built to Det Norske Veritas highest requirements, the dimensions being as follows:
Length Overall 254' 6"
Length between perpendiculars 242' 6"
Breadth moulded 37' 0"
Depth moulded 17' 0"

The vessels are of the single deck type, divided into 6 water tight compartments and provided with a cellular double bottom for water ballast extending fore and aft of vessel. Water ballast is also carried in the fore and after peaks, the total capacity being 80 tons.

The deadweight carrying capacity of the vessel is 2,000 tons and a speed of 15 knots is easily obtained under loaded conditions, the average speed obtained on trial under ballast being 14 knots.

The vessels are built with clear hulls and the hatches are especially large for quick handling of cargo. The cargo handling arrangements consist of four tubular steel derricks to each of the two masts, three steam winches being fitted at the fore and after hatches and one mounted on the poop making seven winches in all.

The navigating and engine officers are licensed and fitted up in the poop in accordance with the Norwegian rules. In addition, the forecastle is fitted up for Chinese crew for use whilst operating in Eastern waters.

The propelling machinery which is situated amidships consists of one set triple expansion, surface condensing engines having cylinders 18 1/2" x 25" - 49" - 33" stroke, capable of developing 1,100 indicated horse power. Steam is supplied from two cylindrical return tube boilers each 12' 6" diameter by 10' 6" mean length working under natural draught and designed for a working pressure of 180 lbs. per sq. inch.

A complete auxiliary plant is installed in the engine room comprising independent centrifugal pump, ballast pump, general service pump, auxiliary feed pump and a duplicate set of Weir's Independent Feed Pump working in conjunction with a Weir Surface Feed Heater using steam from the intermediate receiver of main engine.

A 10 ton evaporator is fitted, also auxiliary condenser and automatic drain tank for dealing with exhaust steam from winches when working cargo in port.

The vessel is provided with steam winches of the Emerson type and steam steering gear by the builders. Electric light is fitted throughout the accommodation and machinery space and powerful clusters are arranged at cargo hatches.

Immediately after the launching of the s.s. Hafthor was taken alongside the Wharf under the sheerlegs to have her engines, boilers and auxiliary machinery placed on board.

ADDRESS MADE
Following on the launching ceremony, the guests assembled at the company's offices where several speeches were made. Addressing those present, Mr. H. H. Arnold, chairman of the New Engineering Co., said:

Ladies and Gentlemen: The Hafthor—this vessel you have just witnessed so gracefully glide into her natural element—is the eighth steamer built by this company for the same owners, Messrs. Brunsgaard, Klostord and Co. of Norway. Among those who have honored us with their company today I notice several who also attended the launching of the first of this fleet of eight vessels about 2 1/2 years ago, and I am sure you will be pleased to know that the sister ships have each in turn been kept busily engaged plying their trade, some in distant ports where their visits appear to have left a favorable impression of what can be achieved with Chinese labor under foreign supervision. It is but 14 months since, on the occasion of the launching of the s.s. Halvdan, I drew attention to the fact that four steamers remained to be constructed for these same owners, and it is a matter of considerable gratification to us to be able to show that not only can these works produce vessels of the highest class and workmanship but also that in quickness of construction they can equal the large shipbuilding yards in home lands.

We have every confidence in the labor at our disposal and the natural aptitude of the Chinese in this respect augurs well for the future of the engineering and shipbuilding industry in Shanghai, where very rapid strides have been made in the last few years. These ever-growing demands have necessitated considerable extensions and improvements in our yards to meet the requirements of the future, extensions which would not be complete without suitable accommodation for our increasing staff—hence the necessity for the construction of this new building which reflects the growth of our business. As further evidence of this progress I am sure you will be pleased to hear that the berth just vacated by the Hafthor will be immediately occupied in the construction of a 3,000 ton steamer for the Yangtze trade, so that despite the temporary general depression in the construction of new tonnage, we are not standing still here.

It gives me the greatest satisfaction to see these works contributing so largely towards the development of Shanghai as a shipbuilding center, and I think it a fitting occasion on which to express our appreciation to Messrs. Brunsgaard, Klostord and Co., who have so materially assisted in the forwarding of this dual by entrusting to this firm the largest representative order of vessels of this type yet placed in one yard in the East.

Through with the delivery of the Hafthor we shall have completed their contract. I trust that the results attained will encourage them to continue their support. Our relations throughout the construction of these steamers have been of the happiest and in this connection I have again to express our thanks also to Messrs. Parker, Rieley and Simmons, Surveyors for the Norwegian Bureau Veritas, the Owners' Superintendents, and Messrs. O. Thorsen representing the Owners, all of whom have rendered very considerable assistance to the builders.

SPEAKS FOR OWNERS
Ladies and Gentlemen, I will now ask you to join me in drinking success to the s.s. Hafthor and prosperity to her Owners, which toast I will couple with the name of Mr. Tofte.

Mr. Tofte, in reply, said: Mr. Arnold, Ladies and Gentlemen: On behalf of Messrs. Brunsgaard and Company, for whom my firm are the Agents, I beg to thank Mr. Arnold for his good wishes for them and the Hafthor, which we have just seen successfully launched.

As Mr. Arnold mentioned, this is the eighth ship which the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works have built for these owners, and while the present trade stagnation, which has also hit shipping severely, has put a stop to the ordering of further ships by Messrs. Brunsgaard, Klostord and Company for the time being, I have no doubt that further additions to their fleet will be made through the medium of this enterprising shipbuilding yard in years to come. The ships which have preceded the Hafthor from the same builders have all given the greatest satisfaction, and have all found ready employment, both on the China Coast and elsewhere, and the company have every reason to be proud of them, and in thanking the builders and their staff for their very excellent work, I wish to emphasize that throughout the years which have gone since the keel of the first ship was laid, there have existed between the builders and the owners, and their representatives, nothing but the most friendly and pleasant relations.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I will now ask you to join me in drinking to the continued success and prosperity of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works.

On behalf of the builders and owners, presentations of mementos of the launching were made to Mrs. Skinner.

THE NEW BUILDING
The new offices of the shipbuilding company are situated on the Yangtzepoo Road at the junction of Jansen Road. They have a frontage of 150 feet. The whole of the building is of reinforced concrete construction, the elevation being finished with granite plaster.

The floor space of the new offices covers an area of about 20,000 square feet. The ground floor contains the main entrance hall, main stair case and lift, together with show room and spacious well-lighted godown for general stores and machinery parts, offices for timekeepers, clerks and superintendents supervising vessels under construction at the works.

On the first floor are the managing director's rooms and offices for manager, secretary, accounts department, stenographers and general office staff.

The second floor is given up almost entirely to the designing and drawing offices, large rooms being provided for the foreign draughtsmen, as well as for the Chinese staff of draughtsmen.

Provision has been made for the preparation of blue and white prints by electricity, a large room being provided for this purpose, where electric copying machines of the most modern type are installed.

All the floors of the building are of concrete covered with Singapore hardwood planking and the partition work for the various rooms is carried out in oak and glass paneling. Each floor is provided with hot and cold water service and the whole building is heated on the hot water system, whereby the temperature can be evenly regulated at all times. All the offices have steel casement windows of generous proportions assuring the maximum light and air. Automatic telephones are installed throughout the main offices and works, giving rapid and reliable intercommunication between the various departments.

Japanese Capital Behind Huge Local Mill Enterprises

Two huge industrial enterprises are being promoted by a Japanese capitalist in Shanghai. A silk factory in the Ferry Road district and a cotton mill in Yangtzepoo are being planned, and are capitalised at Yen 70,000,000.

For the cotton mill, a plot of land on the junction of Pingliang and Chungkung Roads, measuring over 250 mow, has been secured and plans are drafted for the mill, staff quarters and shops to be erected on the site. When completed, the mill promises to be the biggest Shanghai has yet seen, Japanese say.

Council Firm In Stand To License Rice Shops

Official Correspondence Shows Authorities Are Not Swayed By Broadside Of Protest

Though the intimation has been given that serious disturbances will follow if the new regulation providing for the licensing of rice shops is brought into effect, it is apparent from statements contained in correspondence published in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette that the Municipal Council does not intend to be swayed by the numerous broadsides of protest against the measure that have been published by rice dealers and the notice that the regulation will go into effect on July 1 again is published.

The latest correspondence contained in the Municipal Gazette consists of communications from Hsu Yuan, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, to Sir Everard Fraser, British Consul-General and Senior Consul, a communication addressed to the Municipal Council by the Senior Consul and the reply to it.

In the letters of the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs to the Senior Consul further reference is made to the protests of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the various rice guilds and interests against the licensing regulation and accompanying the communications are appeals from the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce to the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs calling upon him to take steps to prevent enforcement of the regulation.

COUNCIL'S POSITION
The position that the Municipal Council has taken is set forth in the following communication addressed to the Senior Consul by Mr. A. Brooke Smith, Chairman of the Municipal Council.

"Shanghai, June 21, 1921.
"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of June 16, transmitting three further communications from Mr. Hsu Yuan, Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, on the subject of the Licensing of Rice (1) in connection with an unsigned protest purporting to emanate from the rice trade; (2) relative to a communication from the Shanghai Chinese General Chamber of Commerce desiring further information on the subject of licensing; and (3) questioning the Council's powers in the matter.

"With regard to the first two of these communications, I have the honor to enclose herewith for your information a copy of the Municipal Gazette, of June 21 containing a letter dated June 16 to yourself for transmission to the Chinese Commissioner for Foreign Affairs setting forth clearly the reasons for the Council's decision, properly to supervise and control the question of the local rice supply in the interest of the people. It is particularly noticeable that no confirmation whatsoever has been forthcoming of the suggestion by the local Chinese Authorities that the rise in the price of rice is in any way due to the hoarding of grain and the storing of it in the Settlement, also that while the Council refuses to inflict hardship on any resident of the Settlement engaged in the trade in rice, it is its unalterable intention to carry out effectively that supervision and control of the local food supply which is requisite. "The Council realises that it is its duty, in time of tumult and popular disturbance to protect the local rice dealers, so long as they remain peaceable and law-abiding residents of the Settlement; to this end, however, it is essential that it shall be in possession of full information as to the persons engaged in such supply, with details as to the amount of grain in their possession, and no measure affords such full information, with protection to the concerned, and with so little necessity for interference or possibility of unauthorised action, as a system of licensing properly and effectively carried out. Thereunder the exact conditions of the licence are known beforehand and no person may pretend to unauthorised powers which he does not possess.

"In therefore requesting that you will be so good as to reply to the Chinese Commissioner for Foreign Affairs in the sense above indicated, I have only to add for your information a copy of a further Police Report on this subject, which may be of interest. "The third communication as to the Council's powers of licensing, I am sure you will agree with me, merits no discussion."

The rice guild in Nantao will again meet this afternoon to protest against the licensing of the rice shops in the Settlement by the municipal authorities. The local shops are keeping as little stock as they can, anticipating a strike on July 1 if the municipal authorities refuse to reconsider their decision.

Official reports say but 17 junks arrived in Shanghai loaded with the cereal in view of the pessimistic attitude held by the local buyers. The price however remained low in spite of the shortage in arrivals.

The rice shops in the French Concession and Nantao and Chapei have petitioned the respective authorities to devise measures to prevent a strike. Their petitions say that although they are not to be restricted by the license conditions of the International Settlement, they feel that they would indirectly suffer in case of a strike of rice shops in the settlement.

PEEVISH GIRLS

It isn't their fault.

Astonishing how many girls "can't get on with Mother!" They are pale, fretful and cross, often in bed with a sick headache, a sad contrast to the bright children they were a year or two ago. Those pale lips, backaches, breathlessness and languor tell the whole story to an observant eye. She is growing into womanhood and Nature is asking more of her than she is fitted to bear. Her studies or the light work that she can do wear her out. She has pains and aches that no one pities, because she has grown melancholy and silent. She has queer fancies; will eat sweets when she refuses food, or takes a whim for some unnatural thing like raw rice or even, sometimes, chalk.

Naturally, her temper would be bound to suffer. It isn't your girl's fault that she is peevish. She has become bloodless. Give her a little of the rich, red blood that Dr. Williams' pink pills are famous for making, and you will soon see the difference. It will show first in her better appetite and better temper; then her color will improve and her eyes regain the lustre of health. Bright spirits will take the place of her melancholy and languor.

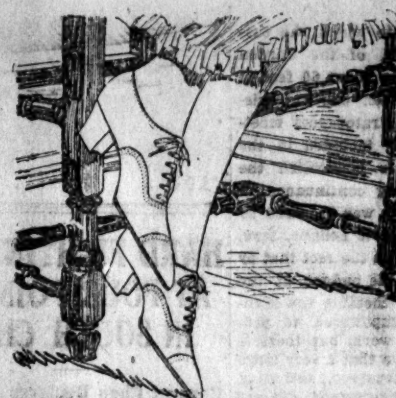

Thousands of girls the world over have been built up in this way by Dr. Williams' pink pills. They are equally good for mothers, being of especial usefulness to women at all stages of life. Get a supply from any dealer, or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Sechenum Road, Shanghai, price $1.50 per bottle, $3 for 6 bottles, post paid. The helpful booklet, "Plain Talks to Women" will be sent to you free in response to a postcard request.

RULING AWAITED ON QUESTION OF BUND WIDENING

Municipal Council Announces
Matter Is Now Undergoing
Reconsideration

Petitions for and against the project to widen the Bund by taking a portion of the Public Garden are now in the hands of the Municipal Council and the announcement is published in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette that "The whole matter is now undergoing careful reconsideration and when the decision has been arrived at it will be published for general information."

The project to widen the thoroughfare south of the Garden Bridge by taking about 60 feet of the Public Garden was authorized at the recent ratemakers' meeting, as it was included in the budget. In this connection the petition opposing continuance of the work, which was prepared by officers of the Civic League, says, "We appreciate the fact that by the passing of the budget at the last ratemakers' meeting the council was duly empowered to proceed with this work, but there is reason to believe that a very large number of ratemakers, including many of the undersigned, did not realize this fact and would have expressed their disapproval had they done so."

"We venture to think," the petition goes on, "that the expediency of the proposed encroachment on the Public Garden, even from a purely utilitarian point of view, is open to doubt and we are strongly of the opinion that sentimental and other considerations far outweigh the necessity for the destruction of the most beautiful part of our Public Garden which has taken the best of a century to develop."

The petition sent in by members of the Civic League opposing the project is signed by over a hundred persons and firms and a letter accompanying it says that additional names to the same petition are to be submitted. Supplementing this petition another circulated among residents generally by Mr. W. Bruce Lockhart, who voiced the first protest against the project, it is understood, will be sent to the Council. The petition of those who favor having the work of widening the Bund carried out in accordance with the plan originally announced is signed by twenty individuals and firms.

"We, the undersigned," says the petition, "in view of the recent press agitation that the work should not be proceeded with, are of opinion that the proposed road widening is most necessary for the public convenience and should be commenced forthwith."

The signers of this petition are: Messrs. E. C. Pearce, E. I. Ezra, H. H. Fox, M. Shuto, W. L. Merriam, R. S. Ivy, Gilbert Davies, E. E. Parsons, Alster and Co., R. S. F. McBain, Wakeford Cox, H. M. Tibbey, F. B. Pitts, R. Robertson, M. H. Loran, E. L. Marsh, G. H. Stitt, W. H. Barham, J. K. Tweed and C. M. Bain.

Garage For Aircraft Opened Near London

Tourists May Set Down Plane, While Waiting For Oil, Gas Or Repairs

London, May 7.—The old joke of asking aviators the question "Where is your garage?" has been exploded with the establishment here of a bona fide, plainly labelled garage intended for the use of aerial tourists. It has been erected by the De Havilland Aircraft Company at Staglane, Edgeware.

Here the owner of a private airplane can "drop in" with his runabout and have minor repairs made while he waits. The company's announcement says: "A staff of highly skilled mechanics under fully qualified ground engineers. Petrol and oil supplied. Overhauls, modifications and repairs promptly executed."

The business is almost identical with that of the familiar automobile garage. Private aviators threatened with motor trouble, shortage of gas or loose controls have only to set down at Staglane, call a mechanic, pay the fee and take off again. Already several customers have patronised the new garage, including the chauffeur of a private De Havilland belonging to the Hon. Mrs. "Poppy" Wyndham, daughter of Lord Incheape. Airplanes in which a person can fly anywhere at any time can be hired with pilots.

Mrs. Frank J. Gould Goes On Stage Again

Former Edith Kelly To Be In 'Pins And Needles' In London

London, May 7.—Mrs. Frank J. Gould, formerly Edith Kelly, whose differences with her husband were aired recently in French and American courts, is returning to the stage here. She will reappear in "Pins and Needles," which will be produced at the Royalty Theatre next week. Mrs. Gould said today that this makes the thirteenth year since she left the stage and expressed the hope that it will not be an unlucky number.

"I have often wanted to return, but was drawn back at the last moment," she said. "Now I intend taking the plunge. I am appearing in one or two dances, including a Spanish one. Once I get through the first night I shall be happy behind the footlights again."

More Bars In Path To Chauffeurhood

The path to chauffeurhood looms ever steeper, rockier in prospect, and the goal beckons the aspirant with an ever lessening lure.

Now comes the Pakhoi Road Street Union with a series of suggestions for the regulation of motor car drivers. The Union has submitted the following to the "Life Precautionary Society," inventors of the victim-in-egg cure for reckless chauffeurs, to supplement the list of proposed restrictions which the latter body plans to send to the Council:

"1.—After a chauffeur has qualified by examination he should work in a police station three months without pay, after which a permit may be issued to him. Those chauffeurs who have already secured permits should work in a police station one month.

"2.—Names, ages, descriptions, native places, finger prints and photographs of chauffeurs should be taken and copies kept in police stations in the Settlement and in Chinese territory.

"3.—Any chauffeur who causes the death of a person must be sentenced to at least two years' imprisonment and expulsion. If in Chinese territory the man should be deported to his native place after serving sentence. He should never again be allowed to become a chauffeur.

"4.—If a chauffeur injures or kills a person with his motor car he should be taken before the court for punishment and the owner of the car should also be dealt with. He may be ordered to pay a sum of money per month to the family of the person injured or killed."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.
The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a measure held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a pure and reliable medicine for infants and children, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."

SHANGHAI FINDS ITS LOST BATTING EYE; BEATS HOVEY NINE BY FREQUENT HITTING

Dennison Holds The Navy To A 5-0 Score; First Game An Easy 20-5 Win For Huron Over Nine From 1st Section Of Flotilla

The Shanghai baseball team "came back" yesterday, they turned like the proverbial worm, after many recent defeats, got their eyes on the well known ball for a total of twelve bingles, and trimmed the tight little team from the Destroyer Hovey by a score of five to a shut-out. Incidentally the first half of yesterday's doubleheader went to the Huron nine in easy fashion, for a count of 20 to the 1st Section of the Flotilla's 5.

Shanghai's win was not by any means easy. The local men had to hit and to play ball for every thing they got. The Hovey men were always working hard against them. They choked off Shanghai's prospects three times with fast double plays, and barring two errors which developed into runs their work was up to par.

Dennison easily had the edge in the pitching. He is a cool head, that boy. He found himself in many boxes during the nine innings of play, but with nice arm work and head work and fielding he drew himself through for a shutout. Shanghai played behind him in admirable style. They had confidence in him and showed it in every move.

Vincent, for the Hovey was good while he lasted. The first two runs scored against him grew out of two bits of bad play by his team mates. The other three came from free hitting. He weakened a trifle in the latter innings, and the Shanghai boys took full advantage.

The Hovey men only once got to see third base. That resulted from Hendrickson's high heave to first of Carroll's grounder, which let the runner go to second. He took third on a half wild pitch which Bristow failed to knock down. There were none out. Bills threw Christy out however. Vincent fanned and Dennison got Healey's little bouncer to Wilhoit in time to retire the side.

Shay started off the fifth with a double which he hoped would net him three bags. He was thrown out on Merrill to Wood's. Crow. Another double in the sixth by Healey showed promise for the Navy, but he was doubled at third after Wilhoit had grabbed off Haskell's foul. The decision, by Stockman, was bad. Healey was safe a mile but Stockman couldn't see it. The play had no bearing however, for as things went, Healey would have died at third.

Shanghai's first run was scored by Dennison, safe on Hannigan's wild throw, for two bags. Hopkin's single, and Lydon's miff of Merrill's fly. The second run Merrill brought over. He got first on Shay's bad throw and Prietag's miff, took second and third on Bills' and Wilhoit's hits, and scored on Haskell's bad throw-in to third of Wilhoit's drive. Bristow's triple followed by a single by Crow netted the third run. The last inning gave us two when Crow, Dennison and Hopkins hit safely and Christy threw badly to third to catch Dennison who was advancing on Hopkin's hit.

HURON'S WIN TOO EASY
The Huron men sprung a bit of a surprise when they walked all over the 1st Section of the Destroyers for a 20-5 win. The game started with the flotilla men in possession of a big reputation by virtue of their win over the Chandler on Tuesday after ten innings of hard play. The flag-ship men expected a stiff afternoon. They were quite relieved when they found out how they were stacking up in the play yesterday.

Poulton lasted two innings for seven runs and four hits. McCormick who took up his hurling task gave seven more runs in the next two innings and in the final sixth gave up the ghost for six more counts and seven bingles. He was merely hopelessly lobbing them over the fan at this stage. The game was up, and he knew he couldn't save it.

It would make too long a story to tell how each and every one of those 25 runs were pushed over the plate. Suffice it to say that the Huron men were hitting everything that was thrown at them; the Flotilla men erred six times at crucial moments, and when the bases were filling fast on them, they got scared and played things wrong or not at all.

In the second, third and fourth innings the first batsmen got on and continued around the circuit on unsuccessful attempts to force them out, the succeeding batsmen

SAYS "BUGS" Baer:

BEAU BUMMEL OF THE PADDED RING

Roughout Champ Was Known As The Best Dressed Man In Arizona State Almshouse

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Dear Whoosus:

Why not give us a slant at Gink's battle record. I have a hunch that he was no pinch hitter. If you are still fighting facts, being a real estate agent, I must inform you that the only title Gink ever held was wiped away by a second mortgage.

Furthermore, if Gink was a ball-player he would be a mascot in the Spring Valley League. If he was an actor, he would be playing spilt evenings in a Punch and Judy show. If he was a jockey, he couldn't get a riding permit on a merry-go-round. Yours, theirs and the other guys

PAT O'HIO.

Hotel Everett,

Near Erie Depot,

Jamestown, N. Y.

Here is a man who allows his taste in neckties to run away with his brains. He tries to put the Stop-Sign signal on the greatest fighter who ever waved the sponge.

Gink was a ball-player. Of course, he wasn't the equal of Boze Burger's man, Swat Mulligan, of the Poison Oaks. But he played in the Roughtown League and hung up a record that will never be looked at. He was also some alluring actor. He created the title role in "The Face on the Barram Mezzanine Floor."

KNOCKS 'EM DEAD
He knocked that audience leader than a sugar cured ham. Nobody in Roughtown ever thought that Gink had talent. But after seeing him unload a ton of gestures with words, they got suspicious. The idea of the show was simple. And it was written especially for Gink.

He was also a great jockey. He rode a sawhorse in the Carpenters' Elimination Stakes. And won first money for the most somatic costume. He was also a speed maniac. When only a baby he drove his cradle recklessly in and out of crowded traffic.

His fight with Two-Gun Roberts will live as long as a wet match burns in a gale. Two-Gun came to town all primed to shoot up the pie works. Gink armed himself with cup custards and laid down a meringue barrage around Twin-Gats. He was making history.

GINK REACHES PACIFIC
It was the day of the big Neighborhood Riots. The fight narrowed down to Gink and an Indian guide who owned the only bank in Roughtown. Gink showed he was some pathfinder himself, and was the first white man to guide an Indian over the Rocky Mountains. It was Gink's diosynocracies that almost lost him this fight. In the sixteenth round he got a Mohawk punch on the jaw and suddenly grabbed a ven to partake of a slice of surf bathing. The nearest ocean was the Pacific, but Gink got there with his gloves still on.

The Indian chased him those 2,300 miles through mere aboriginal curiosity. They finished the fight in the breakers. Mermaids, oysters and star-fish were the only spectators. Gink was losing in the "Gulf Stream." His strategy bustled loose and he retreated to the Arctic currents where he licked the warm-blooded Shawnee in a punch.

It was a popular victory and Gink got an eighteen-month contract in the Flotsam and Jetsam Circus.

SURREY MISSES CHANCE TO BEAT AUSTRALIANS

Score Only 118 Runs For 9 Wickets In Last Innings

(Reuter's Service)
London, June 21.—The weather was cloudy and a moderate attendance assembled on the last day of the match between the Australians and Surrey at the Oval today.

With the exception of Crawford (28) and Ducat (30), Surrey completely failed in their second innings against the Australian bowling. Gregory took four wickets for 45 runs, McDonald three for 34 and Armstrong two for 28. Surrey were all out for 118 in two hours and a quarter and thus the Australians won by 78 runs.

The crowd showed hostility towards the umpire's decision that Crawford had been run out. Scores: Australians 1st Innings 213, Surrey 1st 153, Australians 2nd 153, Surrey 2nd 118.

In other first-class matches concluded today, Oxford University beat Sussex by six wickets; Nottingham beat Leicestershire by two wickets; Hampshire beat Essex by eight wickets; Kent beat Gloucestershire by 182 runs, and Somersetshire beat Worcestershire by 83 runs. The match between Lancashire and Middlesex was drawn.

Golf As A Career For Boys

BY ABE MITCHELL

It is significant of the standing and also the prosperity of the American golf professional that there are about twenty in Great Britain at the present time. They are British players who have made good on the other side and who have come home on a visit which in these days of high travel charges is an expensive one.

And not only have they to bear the cost of the journey but also the loss they have incurred through being away from their posts. On many links in America there is, of course, little play during the winter months. The ground is hard in the grip of frost or it is covered in snow, but still the professional contrives to give a good many lessons either under cover or at a net in the open air. One visitor told me that he expected that his trip would cost him fully six hundred pounds. And the expenses of those who intend to stay over in England until after the Open Championship at St. Andrews in June will be heavier still. These facts certainly suggest that the American professional is living in a country of great golfing prosperity.

OFF TO AMERICA
I have often been asked why I do not go to America. Well, it is a matter for everyone to decide for himself and it so happens that I am content to remain at home. Recently several men have gone out and it will not be surprising if others secure appointments before the season is well advanced. It is not nice to see promising players leave to see promising players leave still further to augment the strength of American Golf and though the effect has not yet been felt, it is almost certain to be sooner or later. But you cannot blame the professionals. They are masters of their own destiny at least to this extent.

There is a bright opening for the youth who is prepared to earn his living through golf. In my own case I have never regretted becoming a professional. Indeed, there have been times when I have wished that I had taken the step at an earlier age. There is a freedom which must appeal to all who love an open air life whilst there is always a high incentive to succeed beyond one's fellow players. It may be that you will never win the championship or command a place in the front rank but provided you are equipped with patience and perseverance there is not the slightest reason why one should not make a good living out of golf. But the youth must give his whole mind to the game, which, in his case, will begin in the shop, learning the by no means easy art of club making. It is no use "playing" at learning to become a professional as these youths have recently done. They persuaded one of my friends to take them into his shop and he spent a good deal of time teaching them their work. Then they began to cool in their ardour they were not sure after all whether they wanted to become professionals. Today two of them are back acting as caddies on the course and the third has joined the Army. "No more boys for me," says this professional, and he is now employing two girls who are showing a wonderful attitude for the work.

PLAYER, CLUB-MAKER, COACH
An intelligent boy would quickly learn to make a club, an art that is fast dying out. As a club-maker he could earn a reputation which would serve him all his life. Thus a boy need not be a champion to make a good wage. He might also make a success as a teacher. A young player must be steady. No one can burn the candle at both ends and yet play well. Golf demands our very best if we would extract the best from it, and the steady going youth soon becomes known to his club members as such and they will respect him for it. This respect is not the least important item in a player's career for where can one find another in which members will raise a fund to pay the expenses of their professional to enable him to compete in the championship? I hear of big sums being paid to professionals in America, but a boy ought to go through the hard school in this country before deciding to go abroad.

There things are, I am told, rosier in that the professional works harder but receives a higher rate of pay. The Americans are beginning to realize that golf is the coming game and they are fast picking it up in a way which may astonish some of us this year. I am not a pessimist, but all my information makes me look forward to the coming invasion of some twenty golfers with a deep respect, for there is no doubt that they are determined to leave no stone unturned to capture our Cups.

The Americans are very thorough, but our champion-being ought to learn to play in the winds of this country before going across to make his fortune. He will enjoy a big advantage if he does this. The winds there, I am told, are not nearly as strong as we experience on our links, and unless one plays in wind one can never hope to do well.

The ribbed club which we heard so much about during the American Championships is not a new idea, but the Americans have carried it further by cutting the ribs deeper. These ribs grip the ball and cause it to spin, so that when it lands on the green the ball pulls up quickly. There are few courses in this country which demand so much spin when we approach the hole but in America the dry weather appears almost to make such a club a necessity. While some golfers appear to think that this ribbing is almost a mechanical aid to the game, I cannot see that this is the case, for clubs have been made not unlike these American ones for many years. No game has tempted the inventor more than golf, and we have seen strange putters and drivers and all sorts of bent necked clubs put on the market, but we are very conservative and they have not made a lasting appeal. It may be, however, that we shall be forced to use one of these ribbed clubs when Duncan and I go to America.

POOR ATTENDANCE AT ROWING CLUB'S WEDNESDAY SWIM

Lack Of Players Forces Abandonment Of Polo Game

The second meeting of the Rowing Club's 1921 swimming series took place last night, with a poor attendance both of spectators and competitors. The two preliminary heats of the Composite Race (wherein competitors had to swim one length on the breast stroke and one on the back stroke) were swum off. Brown and Buss were heat winners, the latter's back stroke being especially admired.

The Throwing the Polo Ball competition was a handicap affair, but the winner, Goldman, needed none of the 8 feet he was allowed, for he won easily with a mighty heave of 62 feet 6 inches.

A relay race was next staged four a side. Henry got a cram (the third man for his side to go), so the other quartette had a swim-over.

The most interesting item on these usual Wednesday swimming cards, to wit, the Water Polo match, was abandoned last night for lack of players. It is to be hoped that soon the advent of seasonable warm weather will bring more swimmers down of Wednesday evenings, or it might even be possible to organize two or three games a week about 5:30 p.m., as was customary in years gone by, when a little more pep was put into the organization of aquatics.

The following are the detailed results:

Composite Race
HEAT 1
Brown 1
Johnston 2
Harris 3
Henry 0
Time—58 1-5 secs.

HEAT 2
Buss 1
Krygman 2
Goldman 3
Lawrie Smith 0
Time—65 3-5 secs.

THROWING THE POLO BALL
Goldman 1
Krygman 2
Harris 3
Time—65 3-5 secs.

The team race was won by the following quartette: Brown, Johnston, Krygman and Lawrie Smith.

EDGREN TALKS ABOUT GREAT FIGHTERS OF UNITED STATES OF PAST AND THE PRESENT

Dixon, McGovern, Gans, Nelson, Walcott, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries And Dempsey Are On His Honor Roll, And He Tells Something About Them

BY ROBERT EDGREN

Boxing is enjoying the greatest prosperity that the sport ever knew. Since Tex Rickard set the fashion of paying record purses boxers have been getting enough for their services to make the old-timers come back to life and try it again. We have some pretty fair champions now, but the men who are getting the big money are not in every case the best that ever held the titles.

The greatest champions America has produced: Bantam-weight, George Dixon; feather-weight, Terry McGovern; lightweights, Joe Gans and Battling Nelson; welter-weight, Joe Walcott; middle-weight, Robert Fitzsimmons; heavy-weights, Jack Dempsey and Jim Jeffries.

George Dixon, a colored boy from Charlestown, Mass., brought out by Tom O'Rourke, was one of the cleverest fighters ever seen in a ring. Little, wiry, strong, enduring, game, hard-hitting and clever, "Little Chocolate" did some great fighting in a time when great fighters were as common as gooseberries on a gooseberry bush.

In 1890 Dixon, recognised as bantam champion in America, went to London and beat Nunc Wallace in eighteen rounds, at 112 pounds ring-side. He beat Johnny Murphy in forty rounds at 114 pounds for stakes of $1,200 a side, winner take all. That was the way they fought in those days. Today, if "Little Chocolate" were alive and in his prime, Tex Rickard might be paying him $25,000 for his end to defend the title. Among Dixon's greatest lights as a bantam-weight was his seventy-round draw with Cal McCarthy in 1890. He beat McCarthy in twenty-two rounds a year later.

Going into the feather class, when bantam rivals ran out, George was feather champion for about eight years. He won an average of ten fights a year.

McGOVERN SMASHED DIXON
"Little Chocolate" was king of the feathers until he met Terry McGovern in 1900. McGovern beat him down in seven rounds in which Dixon didn't have a chance to stand off the furious rushes or endure the terrific body beating.

McGovern was the greatest feather-weight I've ever seen in action. He was a great bantam-weight champion until he went into the feather class because here were no more bantams to give him a fight. Dixon defended the feather title at 118 pounds, and this was Terry's weight when he beat Dixon.

Other fighters have been compared to McGovern, but there never has been another Terry. The continued fury of his attack was amazing. He fought at top speed until his man dropped, never slackening for a second. Terry never had a thickened ear or a mark from all his hard fighting.

I mentioned this to Terry once. Laughing, he said: "I hit them so fast they don't have a chance to hit me. That's why I'm not marked."

He finally lost to Young Corbett at 126 pounds, the title not at stake because of the weight, and failing health cut his career short, not long after.

GANS LIGHTWEIGHTS MARVEL
Joe Gans was a marvel among the lightweights. He was a powerfully built, cool-headed fellow with all the skill in the world. Gans started by studying Bob Fitzsimmons and adopting his fighting style. He was a deliberate counter hitter, and he knocked out scores of good men. He knocked out Champion Frank Erne with the first blow struck.

"I studied Erne and learned that he had a habit of feinting and drawing his head back about a foot," Gans told me. "In the first round I waited for Frank to feint, and when he did I stepped in and hit at where his head ought

TOURIST TIDE TO EGYPT AGAIN

But European Slump In Business Has Extended To Land Of The Nile

TROLLEY TO PYRAMIDS

Some Changes In Cities, But General Picturesqueness Remains

BY T. WALTER WILLIAMS.

Like most other countries in this part of the world, Egypt has changed very much through the war, not only politically but commercially, economically and in the private life of the people. Prices are more than double what they were in pre-war times and the masses of the people are suffering while the profiteers continue to make fortunes. A year ago money was the cheapest thing in Egypt and people did not know what to do with it. Now the slump has spread from America and Europe and the pinch is being felt.

Americans coming here to do business find that they face a hard problem, the commercial dishonesty which permeates every kind of transaction and industry. To lie and cheat is regarded as the highest qualification by many in the Levant. A merchant who can go bankrupt and save enough to start again almost immediately is said to be smart.

Every man tells you that he is the only honest man in business in the city and that all the others are liars and cheats. An American sold $2,500 worth of goods to a man of mixed nationality in Alexandria and the goods were delivered just before the consignee declared his bankruptcy. When the American went to him to ask about his money, the merchant said: "I told you that I was the only honest man in Alexandria and now I will prove it to you. Give me $2,000 and I will put the goods you sent to me in my inventory and the other $500 will be your commission." After thinking it over for a few minutes, the American asked what his firm would get out of the transaction and the Levantine replied smilingly:

"They will get the money that the goods are sold for in the auction at my store and with the $2,000 I will be able to start again in business."

TURNING FROM COTTON RAISING

The cotton industry is practically in the hands of twelve Greek firms which buy and sell the crops from all parts of Egypt and ship the commodity to America and England. The attempt to grow Egyptian cotton in America is not causing them any alarm because they do not believe that it will be a success.

Last year on account of cotton realising $200 a cantar (100 pounds), every fellahoon devoted all his land to its cultivation, but this year a good deal of the acreage has gone back to food crops, including wheat and cereals.

The passenger fares and freight charges on the Egyptian State Railways are double pre-war rates because the Government had to pay $50 a ton for coal six months ago and has a stock on hand for two years at that figure. Coal can be purchased at $20 a ton in Port Said and Alexandria now, but this does not help the railways. To reduce the supply all Government departments have been instructed to buy their coal from the State Railways so that the fares and freight rates can be reduced earlier.

Donkeys are not used any more in the cities for riding by residents or tourists. They have been replaced by small open victorias at 20 cents the course with tip and by automobiles which cost about four times that amount. There are plenty of trolley cars in Alexandria, Cairo and Port Said which have two classes, first and second, and a special section for the harem where the women ride. The fare is 12 millimes (6 cents) first class, and 6 millimes (3 cents) for the second class.

Arabs seem to prefer riding on the running board until the conductor comes for the fares and then stepping off quietly and mingling with the crowd. The conductor takes this as a thing that cannot be prevented by any effort on his part.

The scenes in the narrow streets of old Cairo and Alexandria appear the same as upon my first visit thirty years ago. They are just as dirty, dusty and full of the same odors as they were then. In the new quarters (things are very different, with underground sewerage and modern improvements, but the sanitary inspectors can accomplish little in the old houses, which were ancient when Napoleon landed there 120 years ago.

The donkeys and the camels, mostly hairless, blunder along the narrow roadways swinging their racks from side to side to the comfort of the wayfarer who has landed recently from the West, and the fellahoon who owns the produce follow in the rear and prod their animals from time to time to prevent them from going to sleep.

Bright-eyed Egyptian boys skip along with their brass jugs rattling against cups and calling out the licorice water, lemonade or sherbet they have to sell. Some of them sell native brewed beer, which, if it has not the "kick" of the foreign beverage, certainly does not come within the meaning of the Koran. Egyptians have mixed so much with foreigners during the last forty years that they have lost a good deal of their religious fervor and some indulge in wine in their homes.

MOSLEM INFLUENCE WAXING

Mahmoud Pasha, former Mudir of the Province of Behera, told me that the Mosque was the place where every good Moslem goes to say his prayers, but that this does not enter into his life outside. When I asked him what would be done now that the Sultan of Turkey had lost his power, he replied that the title was only a legendary one and that the old fetich in the European papers about the Sultan raising the green flag of the Prophet and calling upon the Moslems in all parts of the world to rally round it was a myth. This was demonstrated, he said, in the recent war by the Moslems from Egypt, India and Africa fighting against Turkey and being the cause of her defeat in the Near and Middle East.

Cairo has not many big hotels, as several of them were closed in the war. The principal ones are the Semiramis, first built in 1842, the Continental, the newest, which is on the east bank of the Nile facing the Pyramids, and the Continental in the city. The old Gezira Palace, which formerly belonged to Khedive Ismail Pasha and was converted into a hotel twenty-eight years ago, has been sold with the Savoy Hotel to a converted into apartment houses which are in great demand. The old Continental and the Anglerterre went long ago, and their sites were used for department stores. The Louvre and Prince de Monaco have had stores there for a long time, and the Bon Marche opened a branch this week with a great flourish of trumpets.

The playing of the military band on the terrace of the Semiramis Hotel, which was a social function during the winter season in Cairo for thirty years, has disappeared, as the management says that what with the racing at Gezira and the dancings on Saturday afternoons attracting the crowds, there would be no one left to come and listen to the music except invalids.

Before the war the Egyptian boys who sold postcards, fly-whisks and newspapers, or cleaned shoes for visitors, could only swear in Arabic and demand backsheesh. Now they can be profane in English fluently as well as say "Give me a plaster for luck, Boss." Most of these youths say they have aged and infirm parents and little brothers and sisters depending upon their support, and that their one desire is to get a plaster to buy bread for their families. They are tireless in their pursuits of money. When a boy gets a plaster he usually goes to the cinema which is often in the streets, which is often in verbal strife and sometimes blows. When the hub reaches its zenith an Egyptian policeman walks up swinging his cane, with which he "tans" all the boys around and then confiscates the plasters and thus ends the dispute.

A VISIT TO THE PYRAMIDS

I made a trip out to the Pyramids and found that two more tombs had been found. A part of the lobe of the left ear of the Sphinx, about a ton or so, had broken off through age, the policeman said just after the historic relic celebrated its anniversary. I climbed up under the head and saw where the French polius had carved out the head of Napoleon on the lower jaw 120 years ago, which must have taken some time to do.

I could have gazed at the Sphinx much longer if I had not had two assistant sheiks of the Pyramids, four donkey boys and two camel drivers surrounding me and all shouting at once which combined with the dust, heat and flies was somewhat trying. While I was fascinated by a camel scratching the end of his long nose with his forefoot he dropped the limb slightly and prodded me in the abdomen. Before I could recover the beast bawled his spongy hoof down on my left foot, and the donkey nearly knocked me down. The old sheik of the Pyramids would have been there, too, but he was busy inside the King's tomb counting the plasters he had taken from tourists that morning, the policeman said.

The Mens House at the foot of the Pyramids, where so many Americans have stopped during the last quarter of a century, is still flourishing and has had a good many visitors this season. The Sheiks have a hard life as they have to go out in the desert at night to bury old coins in the sand in order to find them for the tourists in the morning. There are several factories between Cairo and Luxor where ancient pottery and scarabs are manufactured and sold at a small price to guides and others who dispose of them to gullible strangers. The Pyramids are reached now easily by electric cars from Cairo and by automobiles. The flat avenue of trees that formerly lined each side of the road has been destroyed as they were attacked by a disease which killed them. Young trees have been planted in their places.

The tazzaras in the Mosqui street are still the most interesting of their kind in the world, and have been left unchanged by the war. They contain many kinds of goods, silks from Damascus, rugs from Isfahan and Bokhara, ivory articles from the Sudan, chiefly big necklaces, rhinoceros hide sticks, gold and silver work, embroidered leather slippers and other articles, including a big assortment of pipes called hubbly-bubble in English, and arghillis in Arabic, not narghills, as usually termed in novels.

TURK FROCKCOAT DISCARDED

The Egyptians have discarded the Stambouli, a single-breasted frock coat buttoned tightly up to the neck, since the departure of the Turks from Egypt, and wear the ordinary business suit, using the frock coat for official visits. The turban, somewhat similar to the Turkish fez, is worn on all occasions. The masses of the people wear a galabieh, a long garment made of white or blue cotton, and a turban or turban bound round with a girde of linen.

The women of the wealthier classes in Egypt wear the yashmak under instead of over the eyes and they are only a matter of form, as the material is thin muslin or veiling. Women of the lower classes, who support their husbands by carrying about huge bundles on their heads, mending roads or taking in washing in addition to doing the housework, are still very orthodox in their ideas. They wear a thick black veil which only leaves the eyes visible. In the country the fellahoon working in the fields or pumping water with the old-fashioned sakieh, a long pole with a bucket attached, often wear nothing but a loin cloth. They say it is easier to work that way in hot weather and that their ancestors wore the same style of clothing for thousands of years.

All classes in Egypt, including foreigners, men and women, smoke cigarettes almost constantly. Their morning coffee and continue until the last thing at night. Any man refusing the offer of a cigarette in Egypt is regarded with suspicion as one who is not quite normal. In every office, from the Grand Chamberlain's in the Abdin Palace to the Police Station, coffee in tiny cups full of dregs and sugar is handed around before discussion is started.

Funerals are conducted on a big scale in Cairo, and when any person of importance dies the procession to the cemetery outside the city is regarded as a public ceremony. Egyptian soldiers with band and pipers and the boy scouts take part in it. The hearse is a huge affair in white and gold, decorated in Oriental manner. The police walk ahead in two lines on each side of the roadway at a slow pace.

At the funeral of a wealthy Copt there was a big sign printed on white paper on both sides of the hearse which read, "Telephone 6107."—Just a bit ahead of the undertakers' methods of advertising in the western world.

RETURNING TO THE NILE

This was the first tourist season in Egypt since the Spring of 1914. Cooks had their steamships Arabia, Egypt and Sudan operating up to Assouan and a service on the second cataract from Assouan to Wadi Halfa. Through the arrival of a big crowd on the Cunarder Caronia they had their full boats during the season, which was not long on the Nile because of the low water.

The Egyptian State Railways have a good daily service to Luxor and Assouan with dining cars and sleepers and also to Alexandria and Port Said to meet the steamships from Europe. The Italian companies (Lloyd Triestino and Serviciu Marittimo) operated weekly express services from Genoa, Naples, Brindisi and Venice by the steamships Esperia and Helouan. Each of these liners brings a number of poor Jews on their way to Palestine, who travel as deck passengers and bring their own food and bedding. They go by sea from Alexandria to Jaffa.

The Egyptians want Americans to visit their country again as they used to do before the war. Charles A. Baehler, managing director and principal stockholder of the Egyptian Hotels, Limited, which concerns owns every first-class hotel in Cairo, except the Grand Continental, and also in Luxor and Assouan, said that the number of tourists this season had been under 2,000 while before the war they numbered nearly 7,000 every season. He has been 32 years in the country and is a native of Lucerne.

"We want Americans to come to Egypt," Mr. Baehler said, "and spend the winter here from November to March at Luxor and Assouan, where they can enjoy the driest climate in the world and the best hotels."

People are repatriated for the trip to Luxor, apart from the historic interest of the ruins of Thebes and Karnak, by the golden sunsets on the Libyan hills, which are re-ected on the surface of the Nile, and by watching the wonderful tints in the sky, which change often. The Arab boys in the fields along the banks of the Nile have a happy time, as they never go to school, but spend the whole day in the open air minding the flocks of goats, lambs, horses and camels entrusted to their care. They wear a white or blue shirt reaching to their knees, called a galabieh, a small round cap of the material, and are bare-footed.

The Arab boys seem to understand the goats, lambs and camels and talk to them in a casual manner as if they were human beings. When a camel sticks his tail up and goes around the house or resting place making a hideous noise, instead of beating him with a stick, the Arab says reproachfully: "Oh, thou son of a disreputable father and a miserable mother, go and lie down. Stop making a noise and be ashamed, for all thy ancestors were out-casts and dishonorable camels." This has an effect apparently on the "ship of the desert," as the noise ceases and presently the animal subsides on the sand and is heard from no more.

The Egyptian women remain supreme in the art of balancing. They carry large earthenware pitchers on their heads at a slight angle and walk to and from the river at sunrise and sunset with a grace of carriage which their sex in Europe or America might envy. Now that the habit of chewing gum has been introduced among the natives in the country by Americans the women wear their jaws silently. The women seem to have adopted the chewing gum habit more readily than the men, as the latter seem to be always smoking.

French Dictionary To Be Ready In 1964

Last Edition Out In 1878; Revisers Only At 'H.' Says Message

Paris, May 7.—At the present rate of progress the eighth edition of the French Academy's dictionary will not be ready for the public before 1964. The last edition appeared in 1878. Since then learned Frenchmen have been revising it at frequent intervals but have managed to modernise only about 25,000 words; it was learned this week when it was admitted that they had just finished the letter "H." But when the new dictionary is finally published it will be the most complete in the world, giving the most obscure derivations of all words and scores of obsolete applications in phrases found only in ancient French literature—and will be void of all slang terms except those made famous by the French army during the last war and now considered vital to the national vocabulary.

MAIN'S BOWLERS BEAT CRITCHLEY'S IN CLOSE MATCH

Two Good Games Seen At Hongkew Despite Heavy Greens

Two matches took place at the Hongkew Park greens last evening and in spite of the heavy green some good class trundling was witnessed. Tom Main's four managed to beat Critchley's pets after an excellent game in which the result was in doubt until the last end, when the score was 18-17 in favor of the Reds. A short end and a count of 3 gave them the victory.

Dickey Brandt as first wood was the shining light while the team as a whole played a solid game. For the losers mention must be made of Arthur Raitt who put up as good a game as any seen in a championship tie. He is a bowler who will be heard of in future championships.

The second game was between Frank Jones "bunch of mutts," to use his own description, and the Juniors. However, they came very near to blasting the hopes of the Juniors strong rink and but for Don MacAlister, the Reds would have been "in excelsis."

They say "it's an old dog for a hard road" and Mac proved this last night, for with Ross Young not playing his usual game, he saved time and again, both with drives and drawing shots.

Shanghai Finds Lost Batting Eye

In the meantime going safe at first. A hit, or two, and an error or two let the runs in. In the sixth the first eight men at bat hit safely for the six runs shown in the score.

This evening at 5 o'clock the Shanghai team, to its full strength of 25 men is expected out at the Race Course for a stiff workout. It might be that a little "game" will be fixed up between the Bolshevik nine and one of the sailor teams. Saturday Shanghai will meet the team which lost to the Huron yesterday, and the Chandler men will mix with the Huron.

to be, and caught him cleanly on the chin."

It was a one-punch knockout.

When he fought Battling

Health, Beauty And The Home

The Unexpected Guest

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

THE problem of what to do when company comes is one our grandmother never had to worry about, for her cellars and pantries were always bursting with all kinds of smoked meats, pies, preserves, pickles and other good things to eat. And it is one that should not trouble the modern housewife if she will make sure to keep an emergency shelf stocked with packaged and canned goods and rely on her ingenuity in serving to make up for any lack of abundance.

Here are some of the things which such an emergency shelf should never be without:

Canned soups, particularly tomato, chicken, bouillon and vegetable; canned shrimps, Japanese crab, finnan haddock, sardines, lobster, mackerel and clams or oysters; crackers, both sweet and salty, particularly saltines; ginger snaps, sponge biscuits and the various kinds of wafers; currant and apple jelly, marmalade, marshmallow whip, marshmallows in thin, canned peaches, pineapple (both sliced and shredded), pears and apricots; canned asparagus, peas, spinach and small beans; grape juice, grapefruit juice and lemon syrup; one of the better grades of dry sausage (cervelat, beef bologna, etc.), bacon, boiled or broiling ham; peanut butter; bottled mayonnaise, catsup, chili sauce, etc.; cheese in glass or tin or the dry Edam varieties.

In other words, the emergency shelf for the unexpected guest contains a small assortment of the better grades of the commercial canned goods and a selection of sauces, condiments and crackers which make possible many quickly prepared dishes. Let us suppose that we answer the door only to be confronted by two fastidious ladies for tea or supper. (We had, of course, intended to eat up the roast scraps and the remainder of the corn-starch pudding, and these will never, never do now!)

But, smiling pleasantly, we leave the guests to be amused by friend husband and dart to the kitchen. We hurry to the emergency shelf and take down tomato soup and saltines, a can of vegetable soup, one of asparagus and one of peas, the marshmallow whip and the chocolate wafers. With deft fingers we take the roast scraps, dice them and heat in the can of vegetable soup, meantime making a slice of toast for each person. The tomato soup is thinned and served in cups with the saltines. Then the roast scraps, highly seasoned and added to the vegetable soup, are placed on rings of toast. The cold potatoes we had intended to try to-morrow for lunch are smothered in a little top milk and well seasoned. The asparagus is laid on individual plates and enriched with a Russian dressing quickly made from the mayonnaise and the chili sauce. Last we take the peas, lay two halves on each plate, and cover with marshmallow whip topped with a candied cherry and a nut meat. And then, with either tea or coffee, we have a very attractive and substantial supper, and few guests would ever guess its hasty origin.

The use of canned soups as sauces is a most economical and helpful idea. Any meat pieces, particularly the irregular ones of a roast, can be diced neatly and added to vegetable, tomato or other soup which has been previously slightly thickened. Mutton pieces added to mulligatawny soup, for example, and served with boiled rice, are appetizing and economical. Serve on toast rings or squares or on mashed potatoes or rice mounds. This manner of serving makes it "go further" and looks more attractive.

Many fruits can be quickly converted into a fruit salad, which goes far to "dress up" a meal. Pears, peaches or pineapple, served with mayonnaise diluted with whipped cream and garnished with nut meats, cherries or balls of cream cheese, are always welcome. Vegetable salads can be made of several kinds of canned vegetables, such as peas and asparagus or small beans with potatoes, etc. The addition of strips of Spanish sweet pepper, cut into rings, does much to give the welcome color note. Grapefruit, orange and other winter fruits quickly make good salads. Cabbage and all such hard vegetables can easily be made into various kinds of "slaw" in a short time.

Crackers are of great service in solving the problem of providing for the unexpected guest. Two crackers stuck together with marshmallow filling or with marmalade make tea accompaniments. Toasted crackers form the base for sardines, fried oysters and all the many "newburg" dishes to which the sardines and oysters are so quickly lent themselves. Shrimps are a food which should be more widely used. There are many excellent grades now, and as a creamed dish, as a salad or in scrambled eggs they are delicious. Let us learn of the Chinese how to use more of this protein food, delicious, flavorful and so full of possibilities.

If a supply of sponge cake or sweet crackers is always at hand there need be no worry about deserts. Any fruit, such as shredded pineapple or the pulp of peaches or strained berries, can be beaten, mixed or folded with whipped cream and poured into a parfait or sherbet glass, and then topped with more whipped cream or a nut or candied fruit. Line the glass or dish with sweet crackers, if preferred, and use marshmallow. Probably shredded pineapple has the widest use, and the pantry should contain more of this than of other fruits. Even left-over cornstarch or other pudding may be cut into neat portions, very dainty and small, and with a fruit sauce poured over it and served with small wafers it makes a dessert of distinction.

Remember, that in all serving for guests even the ordinary foods will be more appetizing if served in small portions, garnished daintily. Also don't forget that what may be ordinary and plain to us may not seem so to others when eaten away from home.

A Well Kept Mouth

By Lina Cavalieri,
The Most Famous Living Beauty.

THERE are at least fifteen different kinds of germs in the mouth, among which are the pus germs (or staphylococci and streptococci), the bacteria of tuberculosis, and other organisms which need only a small abrasion or cut in the gums to force their way into the scarlet stream and set up infections there.

It is because of the presence of these bacteria that it is absolutely essential to keep the mouth clean. The film of tartar on the teeth should especially be removed, not only because of its unpleasant appearance, but because it contains many germs, produces heat and prevents the air from free access to the gums just adjoining the teeth.

This green film upon the surface of the teeth should be removed daily by the toothbrush, using, if necessary, bicarbonate or soda or baking powder. About once in six months the dentist's brush should administer a thorough cleansing to the teeth.

The toothbrush, aided by a proper cleansing agent, and an occasional visit to the dentist, prevent such occurrences as inflamed gums. The alkali in the form of baking powder or bicarbonate of soda not only cleanses the teeth, but also neutralizes much of the acid in the mouth and destroys the work of the bacteria which have produced it. The dentist will remove whatever tartar the toothbrush could not reach, and thus do away with a nest of bacteria on gums and teeth.

With such constant preventive care there need not occur gum inflammations and pus formations and abscesses, and if other forced means of injuring the gums are not employed there is no need to worry about losing the teeth—the Dresden china of the mouth and the stalwart fenders of the stomach against "indigestion"—at an early age.

Such nuisances as toothpicks should be kept far away from the gums, for as these are permitted to dig in they form grooves in the gums and create crevices between the teeth which afterward become difficult to reach and to cleanse. Tiny particles of food then set into these crevices, the bacteria start operation, and the beginning of pus formation and gum inflammation is on its way to counterbalance whatever nuisance was prevented by the toothbrush, alkali and dentist.

Just as toothpicks should be avoided so should be shunned the hard toothbrush. This scratches the gums and makes them sore and causes them to bleed, and also scrubs the enamel instead of the dirt off the teeth, and thus helps to expose the inner, softer part of the teeth, known as dentine. The rapid wear and tear of the pearly construction then begins and its rapid degeneration dates from that time.

No less an evil than toothpicks and hard toothbrushes is the indulgence in very hot soup, tea or coffee. These serve to make the gums sore and to burn and inflame them. They should be moderated in temperature as the brush should be softened in hot water, and a silk thread substituted for the toothpick.

It is not the gums alone which suffer from frequent lack of these preventive measures, but also other parts of the mechanism because of the general lowered resistance of the tissues due to gum inflammation. Such ailments as Bright's disease, tuberculosis, diabetes and an appearance and feeling of old age often result from the absorption into the scarlet stream of pus germs and other bacteria which find a haven in a mouth filled with dirty, decaying teeth.

If the teeth, moreover, are not kept clean there appears, in time, an unnatural redness, softness, spongy look of the gums, and swelling and pain are present. Pus most frequently forms in such gums, and sometimes it can be squeezed out from the tiny pockets at the edge of the tooth, closed by a tiny whitish head on the gum, close to it. When this happens Riggs' disease is most likely to be present.

Although Riggs' disease is allowed to progress the inflammation extends downward, along the membrane and hard covering or cement which covers the roots of the teeth. At this stage of the development of the disease the gums recede, the roots of the teeth become exposed and the teeth ultimately loosen and drop out.

Although Riggs' disease may also be due to accident—favors or special unlooked-for affections—it is most frequently due to slow deterioration of the health of the gums.

The gums, it is true, more frequently lose their strength and become feeble from lack of care, but sometimes a poor dentist does much to bring about Riggs' disease. Ill-fitting crowns and bridges are a great menace to the gums and often result in the formation of pus, as do stumps of teeth and half-decayed roots which are attempted to be saved by crowning or are permitted to remain in the mouth.

Secrets of Beauty

PLEASE publish something that will bleach the hands to a pretty white.—A. Z.

Put on an old pair of loose kid gloves before going to bed at night, after first smearing the hands liberally with the following lotion:

Lactic acid.....2 ounces
Glycerine.....1 ounce
Rosewater.....1/2 ounce

WILL you tell me how to strengthen the toes for toe dancing?—W. T. G.

The more the toes are bathed and rubbed the better will be their condition. Below is a preparation which has long been used by famous dancers to promote the litheness and flexibility of their feet. Rub into the toes and the entire foot at night just before retiring:

Rosewater.....2 ounces
Virgin wax.....3 ounces
Portugal extract.....2 ounces
Mutton tallow.....8 ounces
Olive oil.....6 ounces
Ambergris.....1 grain

I AM a girl of seventeen, perfectly normal and healthy, except for my lower legs, which don't seem to have any flesh on them at all. Isn't there some way to fatten them?—KATHERINE.

Put yourself on a more nourishing diet that you may take on a little more flesh all over your body. Then massage your legs daily with a little of this flesh-building mixture:

Tannin.....1/2 gram
Lanolin.....30 grams
Oil of sweet almonds.....10 grams

MY ankles and the calves of my legs are much too fat. How can I make them more slender?—A. J. C.

Try some of the new dance steps. They will help amazingly in reducing that excessive fat on your calves and ankles. Also, get a child's old-fashioned skipping-rope and use it faithfully in the privacy of your own room. Another form of beneficial exercise is to rise on the tip-toes; lower the body until the weight rests on the soles, then up and down again fifty times.

SHOULD one always use cold cream before putting on powder? I have been told that unless you do wrinkles would soon form.—R. D.

Cold cream is not an essential accompaniment of the use of powder except to remove all traces of it at night. However, a little of it, judiciously applied, gives a more smooth and finished appearance. Also it causes the powder to adhere more tenaciously.

I WOULD very much like to know how to reduce the size of my ankles.—F. B.

Exercise and massage are the best methods of making the ankles more shapely. Give ten minutes twice a day to this work. Take off your shoes and practice turning the feet from side to side while standing on them. Also sit with knees crossed and twist each ankle round and round and up and down many times. Afterward rub the ankles thoroughly with camphorated oil or a saturated solution of alum.

How to Use Canned Vegetables

By Mary Lee Swann, The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Corn Scrambled with Bacon.

CUT 3/4 pound breakfast bacon into small pieces and cook until tender in an iron frying pan. Add 1 can corn and stir until corn is hot throughout. Add 4 eggs and mix quickly. Add 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/4 cup milk and stir until eggs are creamy. Serve hot garnished with toast points and sprigs of parsley.

Corn Oysters.

MIX 2 cups canned corn, 2 eggs, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon salt. Add enough fine dry bread crumbs to make a soft dough. Drop from tip of spoon on a hot greased griddle. Brown on one side, turn and brown on the other.

Corn Ramekins.

MIX 2 cups canned corn, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 or 3 tablespoons finely minced green peppers, 1/4 teaspoon salt, a dash of paprika and 2 slightly beaten eggs. Butter 6 ramekins, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and fill with corn mixture. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Garnish each ramekin with a small cooked sausage and a sprig of parsley.

String Beans, Vinaigrette.

HEAT beans to boiling point and boil 5 or 10 minutes. Drain and add vinaigrette sauce, made as follows: Mix 1 teaspoon salt with 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon onion juice, a dash of white pepper, 3 tablespoons vinegar and 5 tablespoons olive oil. Add 1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley if desired. Beat until thoroughly blended. Pour over beans and set in cold place a half hour or longer.

Quick Succotash.

HAVE ready 2 cups cooked or canned beans. Try out 1/4 pound salt pork, add beans and 2 cups canned corn. Add 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash of paprika. Cook until well seasoned.

Vegetables in Casserole.

WASH, pare and slice 6 or 7 potatoes. Wash, pare and slice 1 onion. Pick over and wash 1/4 cup unglazed rice. Have ready 1 cup canned peas and 1 cup canned tomatoes. Arrange vegetables in alternate layers in a greased baking dish. Season 1 quart brown stock with 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon paprika and 1/4 teaspoon allspice. Pour stock over vegetables, cover and let cook in a slow oven about three hours.

Scalloped Tomatoes and Potatoes.

MELT 3 tablespoons fat, add 2 tablespoons minced onion and brown, stirring constantly. Add 2 tablespoons flour and blend well. Then add 2 cups strained canned tomatoes, 1 scant tablespoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Add 1 quart diced cold potatoes. Pour into a greased casserole dish, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven about half an hour.

Asparagus Loaf or Timbale.

MELT 3 tablespoons butter, add 4 tablespoons flour and blend well. Add 1/2 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt and a dash of paprika, and stir constantly until smooth and creamy. Add 1/4 cup diced asparagus and 2 slightly beaten eggs. Butter timbale molds (or a small pudding dish) and decorate with asparagus tips and pimento strips. Pour the mixture into the molds, place in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm in centre. Serve with cream sauce.

Imitation Ground Glass.

A VERY good imitation of ground glass can be made by painting ordinary glass with hot water in which as much Fison's salts as the water will absorb has been dissolved.

Home-Made Vinegar.

PUT apple parings, cores and bits of pulp in a wooden or earthen vessel and cover with water. In a few days, when the first fermentation is complete, strain off the liquid portion and to this add water sweetened with molasses or brown sugar. Let stand for about four weeks and you will have a fine vinegar.

Waterproof Shoes.

TO make shoes waterproof apply two parts of beeswax and one part of platanol fat, melted together. After twenty-four hours wipe off with a soft cloth.

Household Hints

Using Old Shirts.

USE the tails of old shirts for making bags for laundry, shoes, dust cloths, etc.

The Very High Cost of Rats

NOT only are rats responsible for plague and other infections, but they cause an economic loss estimated at from thirty-five to fifty million dollars annually in the United States. Rats attack matured grain, invading granaries, elevators and warehouses, but they do not stop with these depredations, displaying a great fondness for food products made of grains, such as bread, cake, macaroni, etc.

Rats eat almost all of the foods that human beings eat—fruits, vegetables, milk, butter, cheese, eggs and an endless variety of similar foodstuffs. They are thus able to thrive almost anywhere that these products are available. Certain species even climb trees to obtain fruit.

Ordinarily, rats breed faster than they are destroyed. It is estimated that in most cities there are as many rats as there are people, and in the very thickly populated rural districts it is said that there is a rat for every acre of ground. Since they seek their food mostly at night few people realize the immense numbers of these rodents that are fed at the expense of the community. They fairly swarm along wharfs and river fronts, in sewers, stables, warehouses, markets, garbage dumps and all places where food is abundant.

The best way to destroy rats is to cut off their food supplies. This may be done by rat-proofing buildings and keeping garbage in tightly closed metal containers. They may be trapped and poisoned, but cutting off the food supply is the surest and most effective method of extermination.

Some idea of the expense connected with the maintenance of rats may be learned from the fact that a full grown rat consumes about two ounces of grain daily, from forty-five to fifty pounds a year. At the present price of wheat it would cost a warehouse man several dollars annually for the maintenance of each rat upon his premises.

Since other food supplies are now proportionately high the expense of rat maintenance to the average householder may be just as great.

PEKING TURNS TO LANDHOLDERS AS REVENUE SOURCE

Officials Look With Longing Eyes On Tax Possibilities

(China Press Correspondence)
Peking, June 17.—With all public valuables in the pawnshop except the land, the Government is now turning its attention to the land tax which is believed to be a source of large revenue if properly handled.

In hope of putting the taxation system on a sounder basis and making the taxes payable directly to the Government rather than to the local and provincial authorities, special investigators are to be sent to all parts of the republic.

The Government is instructing these investigators to learn how much is paid in taxes in each district, whether the tax is equalized or whether some are taxed lighter than others. The system in some districts is said to be quite modern while in others it is said to be ancient and that the officials by bartering methods get as much as the land will bear.

Whatever the system that has been employed, the Central Government gets little of the tax money. It is compelled to rely on the Communication, the Salt Administration and the Wine and Tobacco tax for revenues to keep things going. These sources are not now sufficient to pay the civil and military expense let alone paying off the country's indebtedness.

A determined effort will be made, it is said, to put the land tax under the direct control of the Central Government. The Government wants to collect the taxes and then make the apportionment to the provinces. It is expected that some of the provincial officials will fight the measure but Peking has one club left. It can keep all the revenues it gets both from earning sources and loans and thus compel the provinces to turn over the land tax.

It is said that the men who will make the investigations are men who have given modern taxation methods careful study.

The Chinese Recorder

The opening article in the Chinese Recorder this month is from the pen of Professor Lewis Hodous, of the Kennedy School of Missions, and provides an interesting statement of the present "Religious Ferment in Japan."

Professor Hodous recently spent several months traveling in China and Japan, and had unusual facilities for discovering the actual state of affairs in religion in the two countries. He is already well known as an expert student of the history of religions, and the present article will decidedly add to his reputation. Many await with much interest his promised treatment of the state of Chinese religions, which is to appear in the forthcoming survey volume to be published by the China Continuation Committee as part of the preparation for work of the nation-wide convention of Christian forces that will take place in Shanghai in the Spring of 1922.

Somewhat cognate to this article is the conclusion of the study of "Religious Persecution in China" by the Rev. H. K. Wright. The whole study, which has run through three numbers, recalls many facts that should be of interest to all the knowledge of which is especially useful to missionaries; for an acquaintance with past errors and their history is one of the best safeguards against similar errors in the future.

Dr. P. P. Price, of Nanking, writes of "The Present Intellectual Awakening and its Bearing upon the Christian Church." This topic has already been studied in the pages of the Recorder from a variety of angles; it has been treated by both foreign and Chinese writers and the frequency with which it comes to the fore is good evidence that the Christian body in China is awake to the existence of a unique movement in the thought of the nation. This paper is one that was first presented at the recent meeting of the China Continuation Committee and deserves careful consideration by the missionary body. Dr. Price pleads for union of Christian forces and for a positive message. He is himself on the conservative side, but is far from being a bigot; if the spirit which he manifests will not draw closer these whom some would insist on dividing, then a split is inevitable.

An excellent practical paper by the Rev. F. C. H. Dreyer appears under the title, "The Answer to the Eye in Street Preaching." Mr. Dreyer provides a number of suggestions that should prove extremely useful to all who have a part in the preaching in the open air or in street chapels.

"Moller's" Voyagers Still In Quarantine

(China Press Correspondence)
Chefoo, June 16.—The British minesweeper and the two submarines are still keeping watch on the Ralph Moller and Long Island to which the passengers were transferred. Everything has been done on the island to make the sojourn there as comfortable as possible. The passengers grumbled a good deal at not being allowed to land in Chefoo but the presence of the British ships had a salutary effect.

At first a little difficulty was experienced in getting the passengers together for the necessary roll call but when they understood that if any of their number were missing it would prolong the period of quarantine they appeared to see the necessity for answering to their numbers. I. M. S. Marazion and the two submarines have been replaced by I. M. S. Magnolia and two other submarines.

Foundation Day, the official anniversary of the founding of the China Inland Mission Schools, was commemorated Friday. The anniversary fell due Thursday, but as a case of scarlet fever was recovered in the Boys' School last week the program was postponed.

Bathing is getting popular. Summer visitors are beginning to arrive in numbers.

PROFITEERS HAVE VERY SAD LIFE IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Prague, April 18.—"In the name of the Republic!" "In the Court of Usuries: The State's Attorney found guilty Mary Novak, who violated section 11, No. 4 of the criminal code, by taking advantage of the unusual market conditions brought about by the war and sold beer and tobacco far above the prices set by the Government."

"The said Mary Novak is therefore sentenced to prison for the period of six months and is to pay 10,000 crowns as additional fine. "In case of non-payment the said Mary Novak is to remain in prison one month over and above the already said six months and is to pay all additional costs accrued by the prosecution of the crime."

"This verdict announcing the all name and occupation of the criminal, shall be published in the daily papers of the Republic and he said Mary Novak is hereby forfeiting all her rights to vote and any other rights pertaining to franchise which she formerly enjoyed."

"In the Court of Usuries, acting under the jurisdiction of the High Criminal Court, Department 37, March 23, 1921." Such and similar verdicts and judgments are to be found in the Czechoslovak papers every day. The penalties range from fourteen days' severe imprisonment and payment of 1,000 crowns to ten years of imprisonment and 50,000 crowns. The articles and goods in which the profiteers are dealing are of the greatest variety—from the sale of eggs to the illegitimate horse sale—but their purpose is always one to take advantage of the great demand for commodities and to supply such at the most unreasonable price.

Nowhere have I seen such systematic and vigorous prosecution of profiteering as in Czechoslovakia, and when I read of the numerous judgments handed down by the superior courts, it suddenly dawned upon me that these courts and judges in America, their hands would be full with work and the results of their adjudications most desirable.

Nor is the Government now satisfied with the mere pronouncement of verdicts which only incarcerate the culprits and prescribe adequate fines to make this most dastardly practice impossible. No! The Administration is now considering a still more painful form of punishment. The violators shall not only be imprisoned and compelled to pay big fines in money, but they shall henceforth be subjected to public humiliation in having to wash or sweep the boulevards—where every one can see them dragging their chains behind them. And nobody will be exempted. Rich and poor alike shall thus be exhibited as a horrible example to the citizenry when they were taking advantage of their names shall be published in all the papers, making their ignominy still more pronounced, and precluding all their future possibility to engage in business!

MINISTERS TO STAY

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chinese Soldiers Fire On Customs Station At Harbin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Harbin, June 18 (delayed).—Chinese soldiers have fired upon and attacked a river station of the Chinese Customs in the vicinity of Harbin as the result of shots fired by Hungtutes on the opposite bank of the river. The soldiers claim that they thought these shots were fired from the Customs building.

They fired on the place at close range and finding that their fire was unanswered, entered it, treating its occupants with insolence and beating the Chinese guard. They then looted the houses of some fishermen in the neighborhood.

A British and a Russian Customs official who remained in the station throughout the attack were unhurt. On the following morning, however, a renewal of the battle between the soldiers and Hungtutes resulted in evacuation of the station. The Commissioner of Customs has lodged a strong protest over the affair.

Americans Trimmed By Old Game In Paris

Paris, May 7.—Two Americans, Joseph Brenner and Frank Smink, who registered at the Hotel O'Connor here, have had a costly lesson in misplaced confidence as a result of entrusting 15,000 francs to two unknown New Zealanders whom they met while trying their luck at Monte Carlo.

The New Zealanders aided Brenner to change American dollars into francs. They then suggested that all should hand their money to one of the Americans. A few minutes later they excused themselves, as they said they had urgent business at a local bank.

When they failed to return Brenner opened his wallet and found it filled only with paper. The obliging New Zealanders have not yet been found by the police.

The Resolutions of Shanghai Laundry-Men's Guild for Increasing Laundry-Charges Towards Foreign Patrons

In order to protect our business from interference by S.M.C. Health Department, and maintain our living in this time of hard struggle, we, laundry-men at Shanghai, have formed the said guild for promoting our common interests, sanitary purposes, mutual helpfulness, and getting rid of those bad attempts between two sides, that is our men and servants of foreign houses. For such purposes, we carry out the following resolutions which we hope would meet foreign patrons' approval. They are as follows:—

1.—Every laundry-master should report to the guild with full address of his foreign patrons' written on the special book; after receiving his report the guild should send men to investigate whether the fixed laundry-charges are contracted by monthly or each suit counting.

2.—It has been resolved that the fixed monthly charges are divided into: at dealing with blankets, trousers, increasing 2 times more than those former fixed charges (see prices fixed in the V Resolution) at it disapproval of the former apply, stop monthly laundry-service for such patrons until getting assurance. (The reason why is explained in the X Resolution); other laundry if willingly to take such services for such patrons, being wisely advised first to report to the guild with addresses of such patrons according to the I Resolution.

3.—It has been resolved that clothes of those Chinese servants in the foreign houses are rejected to take into any laundry. (They always force the laundry-men to do so); the laundry-masters always get heavy fine for this purpose. According to the XII Article of S.M.C. Health Department for the purpose of preventing plague from being prevalent to iron the wet clothes is prohibited. If foreign patrons themselves are willingly to have their clothes to be ironed they are requested to sign their names and the amount of wet clothes that should be clearly put down in the 3 duplicate-books. (It should be fully explained in the XII Resolution) otherwise the laundry-master should be fined both by the guild and S.M.C.

Those washed clothes should be examined personally by foreign patrons respectively.

4.—In order to prevent those irregular patrons from violating what is said in the above mentioned (3) the laundry should prepare another 3 duplicate-books for serving, the same. The charges should be fixed exclusively.

5.—It has been resolved that every laundry should resume their business as usual. For the sake of protecting our capitals from being lost and observing the regulations of S.M.C. Health Department for cleanliness, the guild has fixed the charges as following that are uniformly enforced by all laundries at Shanghai. They are as follows:—

1.—Big-sized suits of clothes at percent $18.00
2.—Small-sized suits of clothes at percent 4.00
3.—Summer overcoats of wood-fabric, pongee, other ripe or raw silk clothes to be washed by exceptional process each at 20
4.—The above varieties to be washed by ordinary process, each of its charge is not increasing; that is, it is charged according to the former rate.

5.—Clothes from foreign restaurants, bars, hotels, clubs, and companies, counting by whole amount, each at 03
6.—All overcoats, no matter how the material is, each uniformly charged at 20
6.—Beginning from 1st July all old or new laundries should get certificates and 3 duplicate-books from the guild respectively. Both sides (Patrons and Laundries) should sign on the 3 duplicate-books. The process can save the trouble of mis-distribution in number of clothes from one to another, denying of tearing or broken spots by both sides, escaping with patrons' clothes by any dishonest laundry man.

7.—Every laundry-master should pay the fees of the certificate and 3 duplicate-books according to the net price paid by the guild to the printers.

8.—Bills should be printed by the printers specially hired by the guild only. When the laundry-master wants blank bills he should send his accounts to the guild that is authorised to examine these accounts, then blank bills are given and checked without any mistakes.

9.—If the laundry-master is to take charge of another's old business, he must see whether the certificate or duplicate-books have been withdrawn. If not, he could not get new ones from the guild.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and

Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending yesterday:

Exchange:—During the week

the London price of silver declined to 34 1/2 d., but with buyings orders from China recovered to 35 1/2 d., last week's closing quotation.

Our rate for T.T. on

London at 3 1/2 % is 1 1/2 d. higher than last week. The market has been supported by sales of Gold

T.T. by our local speculators. Exports still remaining dull. The rise in our official quotations to approximately the parity of silver is probably due to the necessity for a replenishing of our stocks of silver, by purchases in the London and American markets.

Our stocks have recently been depleted by shipments to the South of China probably for coinage at the Canton Mint. From recent advices of silver there should be little difficulty in China obtaining her comparatively small requirements without unduly raising the price of silver.

We expect stocks to arrive before the end of July and unless exports show better signs of improving than at present the outlook for exchange is on the weakening side. We close after a firm market, easy. This has occurred for the last three days.

Our stocks of Silver are reported as follows:

JAPANESE SILK

PRICES CONTINUE

UPWARD TREND

Foreign Demand Is Strong—

Cocoon Prices Are Also

Going Higher

Much improvement is noted in the habutai market in Japan.

The price is registering better scores. Pongee is also on the upgrade once more, the stage

being set for much improvement in speculative buying.

The soaring tendency in the cocoon trade and Yokohama's more spirited business in raw silk have roused the faded habutai market. A more definitive sign of improvement is noted in buying for export. Both

Kanazawa and Fukui reported pretty good advances.

The general sentiment in the habutai market is completely transformed as a more optimistic opinion obtained further in the line as to the ultimate effect of cocoon and raw silk on the price of habutai. Holders have lost their depressed feeling and are standing for higher prices.

Buyers, too, are buying somewhat actively although in some sections their buying is deemed as attempts at covering requirement for immediate shipment.

Fukui fabrics are up 10 sen to 20 sen and 2.4 shaku 6 momme is up to Y.12.90, while 8 momme has reached Y.12.55. Kanazawa tissues have also advanced 10

sen per 100 momme 2.4 shaku

momme, having reached Y.12.80

while 1.8 shaku 4 1/2 momme mounted to Y.12.70.

In the pongee market also the stimulating influence of the cocoon and the raw silk trade is felt keenly. Buyers who were most susceptible to the influence are beginning to cover ahead for speculative purposes. Business is possible at Y.6.90 per 100

momme. It was even believed in some sections of the market that unless buyers stopped buying

WEATHER

Weather still overcast and changeable. Moderate monsoon to the South of the Yellow Sea; unsteady breezes and local calms in the North.

The American School Project

Note: The following address was delivered by Mr. C. L. Seitz, Chairman of the Land Committee of the new American School, at the annual meeting of the American Chamber of Commerce last night. It outlines what has been accomplished and forecasts an active campaign during the summer for the comparatively moderate sum still required. We recommend a careful reading of it to all American residents. It shows that good, hard work has been done in a really great cause. Three-fourths of the money needed has been raised. One more stiff pull and the school is "over the line."

In addressing you tonight on the subject of the American School I feel particularly honored. This project, which calls for our wholehearted support, is one of the greatest and most beneficial factors necessary to the furtherance of American success in China.

The expansion of our national trade has brought to this community numbers of Americans to develop the business of firms seeking permanent footing here.

To meet the competition of merchants of other countries on an equal footing, we must be able to offer to our staffs in American companies, inducements and comforts which will make it worth while for them to figure on making their homes in China. The first years spent out here are merely a period of study and probation. In China it takes fully five years of continuous application and endeavor to establish a business foundation whereon can be built a solid trade connection.

The great establishments of our leading competitors in trade have taken many years in the building and we must not underestimate the difficult problems that exist in creating American institutions to compete for our fair share in the future development of China's great resources.

British, French and other great trade interests out here have seen to it that adequate schooling facilities and comforts of home life are offered to the families of their nationals. Look at the fine schools they have provided for their children!

Are we Americans willing to do our duty in equal measure by our own children?

MOST EMPHATICALLY I SAY WE WILL! and what is more, we are going to provide for our children just as good an American training as they would receive in the best of schools at home.

Unless we are able to offer American families that assurance, we cannot expect our best American business men to come to China with their wives and children to establish homes and, gentlemen, until we have permanent American communities in the commercial centers of China composed of families who intend to stake their welfare on success in business life here, American trade in this country cannot be placed on a permanent footing.

China's vast mining resources lie practically undeveloped. The industrial field has only been scratched by what has so far been done in the erection of electric and steam power equipment, silk, cotton and flour mills, engineering and shipbuilding plant and transportation facilities.

We are still in the pioneer stage teaching the Chinese the great possibilities of their country in the use of our modern machinery in quantity production.

As we sow in our lifetime in China, our children will reap when they follow in our footsteps to continue the development which we may create.

To achieve this they must know the language, growing up with a thorough understanding and appreciation of the sterling qualities of the people of this great country. They can only do this in our schooling system out here we can give American children the right education to fit them to carry on (with possibly a few years of specialized finishing training in our universities at home) the industrial development begun built by our endeavors.

The close relationship of business to American schooling in China and dependence thereon of future American trade development is what prompted us two years ago to get a committee together to consider ways and means to provide the necessary schooling facilities.

I will now describe to you what this Committee have done. We found that the allied missionary bodies were maintaining a small American school working under a considerable handicap in unsatisfactory surroundings in a remote section of Hongkew. This school had been started purely for the purpose of giving an education to the children of American missionaries in China but owing to the pressure of commercial interests children of other American families were receiving tuition there.

A joint committee was formed consisting half of representatives of American missionary societies and half of commercial appointees selected by the American Chamber of Commerce and American Association of China. In the summer of 1919 a campaign was started to raise funds to build an American school and the sum of Tls. 107,000 was raised in China whilst the Missionary Boards, through their machinery in America in co-operation with the Committee at Shanghai, raised a sum of approximately Tls. 210,000 making a total subscription of Tls. 317,000. A Corporation was formed under the Laws of the District of Columbia to handle this fund and which under the terms of our charter will hold the property of the School on behalf of our community interests.

A Land Committee was appointed consisting of Dr. Proctor and myself to negotiate for land by the purchase of a suitable property whereon to locate the school. We spent some months in negotiation with the Chinese Government authorities to secure the land for our school just across the Sicaawei Creek opposite French town. Apparently we had every encouragement and support from the officials of the Foreign Office but unfortunately encountered difficulty with the military authorities who control this territory and met with absolute opposition from gentry of the district.

We then tried every means at our command in Shanghai to secure land in some suitable location within the Settlements where the cost would not be too high and the location reasonably near tramway facilities. The history of all our working is too long to tell you tonight but we finally succeeded in entering into contracts for land close to the Avenue Joffre, just beyond the Route Pottier Extension. The location is ideal in every way especially because it is in a section of the Settlement where probably the greatest number of American business residents live and therefore their children will be able to attend school with ease. For those American children residing in Hongkew, we contemplate special arrangements for motor-bus transportation.

The area of land secured is something over 100 mow and the price at which the land was purchased can today be considered an absolute bargain. Many months have gone by in these negotiations but to those who know the real estate game in Shanghai and the difficulties in securing a large area of land like this in one block where the properties have to be purchased from many different owners, it will be apparent that our Committee has done good work and great thanks are due Dr. Proctor for his constant, hard-working efforts on behalf of the school project.

Our Building Committee on which we have the aid and advice of our American School principal, Mr. Bartlett, has very carefully gone into the question of the minimum requisite construction which must be undertaken to house the American School in a fitting manner. In the American School today in Hongkew there are 219 children in attendance; 81 of these are boarders. When our new premises will be ready for service, we can figure the minimum attendance will be somewhere between 300 to 400 pupils and we can expect a large increase in the demand for accommodation for boarders because the children of American residents in the interior of China will come to Shanghai to receive their education in our school and it is very possible that many parents who now have their children in school in America will then bring those children to China to live with them. This will mean the reunion of many families now broken up because of lack of facilities for the education of our children in China.

The cost of the land filled in and laid out for service we estimate to run roughly to Tls. 200,000. The cost of our buildings we estimate will be not less than Tls. 267,000. We have available funds amounting to Tls. 317,000, therefore we have still to raise in the American community in China, a sum of Tls. 150,000 at least.

It is up to every American in China to give and give freely to help make up the Tls. 150,000 we need. I appeal to you tonight to give this American School question the most careful consideration and when we launch our campaign to raise the balance of Tls. 150,000, which we need, let us hope that every American in China will give all he can afford and that our commercial interests will come through as they should and at least do as well as our missionary friends who are lending such loyal and cordial support.

I may tell you that in the working of the committee of the American School, the relations between the business men and the representatives of the missionary bodies on the committee have been most cordial and pleasant and in our co-operation we have learned to respect each other to a degree that can hardly be appreciated. Continuance of such co-operation will, I hope, in future help all our American interests and prove as beneficial as has been the case with the American School project.

We are going to launch our campaign this summer, running it probably through July, August and September. We understand there are several other charitable projects the committees of which also contemplate asking for support but in view of the great importance of the American School campaign, we ask that all other organizations give the right of way to our campaign until it is over.

In closing, gentlemen, I appeal to each of you personally. I appeal to you as representatives of big business institutions to each and every one, contribute your share to the success of our school project. We know that as loyal citizens with the welfare of our American interest at heart you will give and give freely even if under our existing trade conditions it may mean some sacrifice.

Said The Captain

"You never can tell," said the Captain.
"What a blooming Frenchy'll do! Colonials fight like hell for the right.
(The same as I and you).
And a Tommy is always grouchy. And a Kiltie is always blue; But nobody knows of the wind that blows.
Or the bird they call polli!

"There's a Christ at every cross-roads
In France," the Captain said.
"Battered and shattered by shrapnel,
Minus an arm or head.
There's a Christ or a Virgin Mary Painted in blue and red.
They gave godspeed to the living. And they give good sleep to the dead!
"We always saluted a wayside shrine.
When the company passed it by; And once, on the eve of battle, While the gun-glare lit the sky, And the shells were singing over—
We came to a cross nailed high— And a Christ with a polli's helmet Cocked rakishly over an eye!

"I've never been overly pious, But I wheeled my horse right there.
And rode to the cross, and, standing
In my stirrups, reached in air. When a voice in the column shouted:
'Oh, Captain! Leave it there!'
'Twas a lad climbed up and left his own.
For the Saviour's head was bare!

"We charged from the front line trenches
At dawn," the Captain said, "And I woke, when night had fallen,
In a little white hospital bed. On the cot next to mine was moaning
A boy with a bandaged head. He cried to his mother and Jesus Christ,
In French—and then was dead!"
"Twas the lad who gave his helmet
(And his life—as each man knew!)
To shield the head of the Saviour. Painted in red and blue. He had laughed at the sleet of shrapnel
As he laughed at the hat askew!—
So you never can tell," said the Captain.
"What a Frenchman's apt to do!"

New York Times.

To be, or not to be, that is the question,
Whether to have magnolias, and therefore
To take arms against a sea of mosquitoes,
Or to uproot them now, and thus make way
For rickshaws, motors, tramcars, scooters too—
A truce Bruce!

Who would petitions worthily present
To City Fathers and their kind? The deuce Bruce!

Those trees or not those trees!!!
To uproot them, and then carry them
To some undiscovered spot where shade is not—What rot! What, what!

But to be sunned on the Bund Without the fear of being overcome
By vehicles that raise the dust, and drop on us,
Is a consummation devoutly to be hoped for.

The quality of ink, it is not strained,
It cometh now as plentifully as of yore.
It is twice spilled.
It spilloth from the pens of those who would,
It spilloth from the pens of those who would not Disturb the mosquitoes in their hives.

Petitions come from parties for and 'gainst—
The trees or not the trees! That is the question.
A truce Bruce!
Aye, Bruce, for good God-frey
A truce Bruce!

THE IDEAL GOVERNMENT
In reading over the speech of Lloyd George to the representatives of the Empire, who are now assembled to discuss affairs of state, the words of Macaulay recur—and how one devoutly wishes that such a time would come again:

Then none was for a party;
Then all were for the state;
Then the great man helped the poor,
And the poor man helped the great;
Then lands were fairly portioned;
Then spoils were fairly sold;
The Romans were like brothers In the brave days of old.

THOSE TREES AGAIN
The reference to Macaulay calls to mind a verse, which with a little change might help out in the present disputed local situation.
Hew down the trees, ye Council,
With all the speed ye may;
I, with Godfrey to help me, Will hold our Bruce at bay,
In yon straight path a thousand Trams, motors, rickshaws—gee!
Can find the Bund and hear the band,
And not run over me.

UNCALLED FOR REMARKS FROM THE CADDIE
A story is told of a Scottish minister, whose ball found its way with exasperating frequency from one bunker into another, with results that threatened an apoplectic seizure. Not a word, however, escaped his lips until in despair he at last exclaimed, "It's nae gude, Donald! I'll hae to gie it up!"

"Gie what oop?" queried Donald, "the kirk or the gowf? Oh, mon, ye mauna think of de-sairtin' the gowf!"
When one man asked his caddie what he thought of the play of another member of the club, "Ca, him a gowf!" was the scornful answer. "He's no muckle better than yerse!"
Nor was another caddie less frank who, when his employer, after a good stroke, turned to him and said, "That was a good one, Jock!" answered, contemptuously, "Aye, it was no bad; but it's the fast shot ye've struck at a' these three days."

Equally uncomplimentary was the French caddie of whom the following story is told. The boy's English vocabulary was limited to two words, which he had often heard but whose meaning he did not understand. One day an English golfer whose clubs he was carrying made a particularly fine shot, and turned to the boy, with pardonable vanity, for a word of praise. The caddie gave him a radiant smile as he uttered the only two English words he knew—"Beastly fuke!"

Today By Arthur Brisbane

New York has passed the Lusk bill, to discourage the man that would destroy our beautiful government.

Now nobody can teach in the schools of New York if he advocates any kind of government different from the present government of the United States. If, for instance, you said you believed in government without property ownership, or marriage, you couldn't be a teacher in the public schools.

Government in heaven is run without ownership of property, or marriage, therefore the Ruler of Heaven couldn't be a teacher in New York's public schools, which is something of a joke on the Lusk bill.

What schools need are men and women teachers that do believe in better government, realising that the best of things can be improved.

"Tell me where is whiskey distilled" might be the beginning of a new sonnet. Violation of law is distressing, but you can't help admiring American ingenuity when you read that whiskey is distilled and sold in grocery stores, butcher shops, barber shops, delicatessen stores, tenement house cellars, dry goods stores, paint shops, soda fountains, thousands of private homes, and sold but not distilled in telephone booths. If only the law were as enthusiastically obeyed as it is broken.

Gorky, the Russian, says five thousand of the most intelligent men in Russia, scientists, artists, philosophers, are actually dying of hunger. That doesn't say much for the government that Gorky supports. It manages to feed its soldiers.

However, when war or revolution becomes real, intelligence becomes unimportant. The French revolution at one stage said it "had no need of chemists." And Napoleon, who ostentatiously took members of the Academy of Science with him to Egypt, gave this order when the fighting began: "The scientists to the rear."

Woodrow Wilson is afraid that Mr. Harding's foreign policy may cause the United States to become entangled in European matters. There is a smile in that for the careworn.

Mr. Smith, president of the New York Central Railroad Company, has developed a freight car that the world needs, and of great value to every shipper. The freight car is divided into small sections, which can be rolled from the car to the waiting motor truck, taken to the warehouse or factory to be unpacked, repacked and sent back. The most intelligent railroad idea in several years.

A mother, in yesterday's news, was ill and worried. Her son, a nervous child, fourteen years old, worried because his mother was ill. He had not been told why his mother was so depressed. He kissed her good-bye, went to his room and hanged himself. Two hours later the mother gave birth to her eleventh child.

Wondering how she could take care of it had caused her to worry. This little story from the news will interest those that advocate birth control.

AN EXCLUSIVE SHOWING OF

ORGANDIE FROCKS FROM NEW YORK

BOYES, BASSETT & CO.

JADE

The word Jade is derived from the Spanish ijada, the loins, this mineral having been known to the Spanish conquerors of Mexico and Peru under the name of pedra de ijada, colic stone.

The reputed value of the stone in renal diseases is also suggested by the term nephrite derived from the Greek nephros, meaning kidney.

Jadeite, which is a silicate of aluminum and sodium, is a variety of a dark green colour.

This is the kind of Jade most highly valued.

"Green Jade" is the name by which we designate a High Grade brand of Cigarettes made of specially selected Virginia leaf.

In asking for

"GREEN JADE" Cigarettes

You will be getting High Grade Cigarettes.

Sold in packets of 10 and tins of 50.
